Gov. Orr says
Karnes a benefit

Earlier in the week Democratic State Chairman Tom Monaghan of Omaha said in the Lincoln Star that the Democratic leadership in the Senate was holding a seat on the Senate Agriculture Committee for Zorinsky's replacement if the replacement were a Democrat. If Orr names a Republican to succeed Zorinsky, Nebraska would lose its seat on the committee, the article said.

Despite this statement, Karnes said he plans to ask to serve on the Senate Agriculture Committee. Karnes also indicated interest in serving on the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

Orr said even if Nebraska loses its seat on the Agriculture Committee, Karnes' values and knowledge will benefit Nebraskans.

Karnes described himself as a moderate to conservative Republican, particularly conservative in fiscal matters.

Karnes said he was a family friend of the Zorinsky's and admired the late senator's common sense and integrity.

"He left big shoes to fill, no doubt," Karnes said.

Karnes said he received advice from Daub when considering the appointment. The advice was that if he believed in himself and he knew what was best for the state, to "take the step, open the door, don't look back, and do the best you can."

Job demand unusually high
in some spots

"These jobs are ideal for students who love to be outdoors, and don't like to be confined to behind a desk," Dinkelmann said.

Gregor Layman, a junior from Colorado, worked in construction two summers ago. He said the hours varied from 30 to 60 hours per week, and he often had to drive long distances to get to the construction sites.

"It was a pretty raunchy crowd," Layman said, "but for $7 an hour, I figured, what the hell? It taught me how to work hard and function on little sleep."

Mick Sullivan of the Mission Mountain Co. announced a new edition of its special summer-job report for college students. The report gives complete details about more than 5,000 jobs available in 21 U.S. national parks.

"The great majority of the jobs are with the concessioners who run the hotels, restaurants and other tourist facilities," Sullivan said. "Firefighting opportunities with the Boise Interagency Fire Service are also described."

The "Park Report" is available for $5 postpaid from the Mission Mountain Co., 113 E. Wyoming St., Kalispell, Mont. 59901.

Cape Cod, Mass., also has good-paying resort jobs available, said Bonnie Bassett, spokeswoman for the Cape Cod Summer Job Bureau. She said recent growth in tourism in the area has forced businesses and resorts to look for summer help.

Leonard Healy, assistant to the project coordinator for the job bureau, said tourism has grown in the past 10 years in the Cape Cod area. It also has been cultivated as a resort spot where many people have their second homes, he said.

Healy said that in the summer, Cape Cod's population increases from 160,000 to 550,000.

"For every person looking for a job," Healy said, "there are three available."

Wages vary, but the average line cook at a Cape Cod fast-food restaurant earns $6.50 to $7 an hour. Chambermaids earn about $15 an hour. Healy said the standard of living in Cape Cod hasn't caught up with the inflated wages yet which allows summer employees to go back to school with a profit. Group rentals often solve rent problems, and many employers provide housing.

"The jobs are waiting; now we just need people to fill them," Bassett said.
