drove. Coco sat beside me in the middle of the seat. She was drinking a grape soda and her lips were purple. Up ahead we saw a man standing by the road with his thumb up, waiting. "We better stop, huh?" Coco said. "We have to," I said. "It's already too crowded in here," Pete said. I pulled over and stopped. "Hop in Lester," I said. "Get in the back." "Thanks," he said, getting in. "We're going right through Lincoln, Lester," I said. "That's the state capitol, right up there."

It stood firm in the sky, suggesting greatness. "He used to live there," Coco said, smiling proudly.

"Let's stop there and get something to eat," Pete said. "You're from Nebraska, then?" Lester said to me. "Oh, sort of," I said. Then, "Yeah, yeah, I'm from Nebraska. Why not? You have to be from somewhere."

I turned onto Highway 6 and sped toward Lincoln, feeling a little like a college freshman, hoping only for a cool roommate and a football ticket. Hello, lucky ladies, I thought, from here on out it's going to be nothing but party, party, party.

"Hey, Lester," Coco said. "Is Nebraska dull?"

"A Ford Galaxy 500," Lester said. "Imagine that."

UNL's a Burger King town

They also offer hash browns, cinnamon rolls and orange juice.

Cornick said he added a few snack items to the menu that aren't available at other Burger Kings: potato skins, nachos and cookies, all made in the Burger King kitchen. He said he thought these items would appeal to students studying in the union.

I had no problems with the service, but I can see where things might clog up a big over the lunch hour when the union is full of hungry students. Cornick said adding another cash register should take care of the problem. That remains to be seen.

Burger King will stay open longer than its predecessor, the infamous Union Square. Hours are Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The weekend hours are not set yet.

One final word: While I'm glad to have a major fast food chain in the union, I can't help but report mourn the absence of Union Square.

Sure we joked about it, and with good reason, but it was, after all, the home of the Deluxe Burrito, filling and only 85 cents.
