

Check out the libraries

By Terri Hahn
Staff Reporter

For many University of Nebraska-Lincoln freshmen, this fall may be the first time they write a research paper — a task that requires at least one trip to the library.

The campus libraries and the Lincoln Public Libraries provide the materials and the assistance to aid students in such a task.

The main library for the UNL library system is Love Library on City Campus. Most services are there, along with the administrative office. Other services also can be obtained at the C.Y. Thompson Library on East Campus.

Handouts available at the library information desks, say that services available at Love or the branches include:

- Subject specialist librarians who work with the faculty and students of an academic department to develop collections and to interpret collections, library services and policies.

- Computer search services provide online access to indexes, abstracts and other information sources. For a fee, the library can provide a list of references for a specific topic. Certain types of statistical data also are available.

Interlibrary loan can help locate books or journals that are not a part of the UNL system. There may be a fee, depending on where the material is borrowed from.

- Microforms of old newspapers, periodicals, books, government documents, telephone directories and college catalogs are just some of the information the library has for easy access.

- CopiCards are available for purchase for use in the photocopiers. These cards are available for $5, $10 and $25 and allow copies to be made without having to feed change into the copy machines. There is a one-time deposit required when the first card is bought.

More information on any of these services may be obtained at the information desk at either Love or C.Y. Thompson.

Students may obtain a library card at the circulation desk of either Love or C.Y. Thompson.

A current student ID is required to obtain a card. These cards remain valid as long as the cardholder is a resident of the state. There is a $5 replacement fee if the card is lost or stolen. If this should happen, the loss should be reported to the library as soon as possible. The person whose name appears on the card is responsible for all materials checked out on the card.

The loan period for most books is four weeks, and they may be renewed unless on hold for another reader. Other materials, such as periodicals, have varying loan periods.

Overdue charges vary depending upon the original loan period of the material.

Branch Libraries

C.Y. Thompson serves the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resource, the College of Home Economics, and the Barkley Memorial Center. Services at C.Y. Thompson are similar to those offered at Love, while those offered at the branches vary.

Other branch libraries are Architecture, Architecture Hall 322; Law, College of Law, East Campus; Physics, Behlen Laboratory 265; Math, Oldfather Hall 907; Dentistry, College of Dentistry 8, East Campus; Engineering, 2nd floor west, Nebraska Hall; Geology, Bessey Hall 10; Chemistry, Hamilton Hall 427; Biological Sciences, Manter Hall 402; and Music, Westbrook Music Building 30.

Hours for the branch libraries and the services offered at each location are available at the Love Library information desk.

Lincoln Public Libraries

UNL students are also eligible to use Lincoln Public Libraries. The main library is Bennett Martin Library at 14th and N streets. Branch libraries are located throughout the city. The Bethany Branch, 1810 N. Cotner Blvd., is close to East Campus.

At Bennett Martin, students can get a library card by presenting two forms of identification; one must contain a current address. If an ID with a current address is not available, addresses can be verified by filling out a "mail-out" card.

The Lincoln libraries provide many services, namely the Polymusic Library, including collections of musical scores; a fine arts department with pictures, records, films and videocassettes; and the Heritage Room, which contains materials by Nebraska authors. Periodicals and photocopiers are available.

More information on services, library hours and branch locations may be obtained by calling 435-2146.
