year if we discipline ourselves keep working hard."

Last year, Nebraska's volleyball team was led by three All-America performers: Karen Dahlgren, Tisha Delaney and Enid Schonewise.

DeBoer said hard work was the key ingredient that enabled her to be a three-year starter for Nebraska. DeBoer said she has improved since her freshman season.

Because all three players graduated, senior Kathi DeBoer said she expects to be counted on as the team's leader.

"I've become more of a complete player," she said. "I've noticed an all-around improvement in the past years, but that takes a lot of hard work and dedication. You have to keep pushing yourself and be open to learning new things."

"Each year your role changes for one reason or another," DeBoer said. "Being the only senior, I need to help others out more this season."

Pettit said he has also seen improvement in DeBoer.

Nebraska volleyball coach Terry Pettit also said DeBoer has a new role. "She will be our strongest left-side attacker, so she will have quite a few balls set for her this season," Pettit said. "She is also an excellent blocker and defender."

"She's physically stronger and more of a consistent player," Pettit said. "She's a lot more confident and has eagerly accepted more and more responsibility."

DeBoer was a starter on last year's NCAA runner-up team that finished 29-6. She earned NCAA Midwest Region all-tournament team and second-team all-Big Eight honors.

DeBoer said she would like another chance at the Final Four, but added that the Huskers will have to work as a team to accomplish that goal.

DeBoer said that the 1987 Huskers would do as well as last year's team.

"My job this season is to make sure we stay within our game plan and to not panic when we're playing under pressure," DeBoer said. "It will be a different situation helping others through the tough times, but I think I can get the job done."

"We are a young team compared to previous years," DeBoer said. "That can be good in that we will have new players learning together. I think we can be just as good or even better than last

Royals' manager fired

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Billy Gardner, who was named to replace the ailing Dick Howser during spring training, was fired as manager of the faltering Kansas City Royals Thursday.

League West early this summer, had fallen to 62-64 and fourth place Thursday, 3 1/2 games behind Minnesota. Gardner, 60, a former Minnesota Twins manager, was hired last year as a third-base coach after Howser was hospitalized with brain cancer. Howser tried to return as the Royals' manager in spring training but quit after a few days because of weakness. Howser died in June.

He was replaced by John Wathan, manager of the Royals' Triple-A farm team at Omaha and a former Kansas City catcher.
