

Springsteen escapes darkness

But the house is haunted and the ride gets rough

And you've got to learn to live with what you can't rise above if you want to ride on down in through this tunnel of love

As he did in the "Nebraska" album, Springsteen explores the horrors people can do in "Spare Parts." A deserted unwed mother considers drowning her baby after reading about a similar incident. But as she stands at the river holding her baby, she changes her mind. Instead, she hocks her engagement ring and never-worn wedding dress for "some good cold cash."

In "Tunnel of Love," Springsteen emphasizes the light — whether it's moonlight or God's light — reaching into people's lives. The same familiar Bruce icons are still around. His characters roam through the roads and rivers and carnivals of America, but here they do it out of strength and not despair.

Springsteen has spent enough time in the darkness, and in songs like "Two Faces" he admits that it'll always be there. But like the girl in "Spare Parts," he once again manages to escape.

Film series at Sheldon

A series of five films on "The New Architecture" by Michael Blackwood will be presented on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery today through Nov. 21.

The series features leading international architects Arata Isozaki, Ralph Erskine, James Stirling, Richard Meier and O.M. Ungers. In the films, these architects explain their ideas and approaches, and describe their influences and future directions.

Blackwood, who has produced many documentaries on contemporary American artists and art, will be at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to discuss the films.

Screenings of "The New Architecture" will be at noon on Thursdays and Fridays, and at 1 p.m. Saturdays. Admission for the 58-minute films is $2 for adults, and $1 for senior citizens, children and members of the Friends of the Sheldon Theater.

Complete schedules and synopses for the series are available at the Sheldon Gallery, or by calling 472-5353.
