Fans favor new Herbie

By Mike Kluck

A survey of 40 students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln revealed that 48 percent were in favor of the Nebraska athletic department's decision to modify Herbie Husker — the school's mascot.

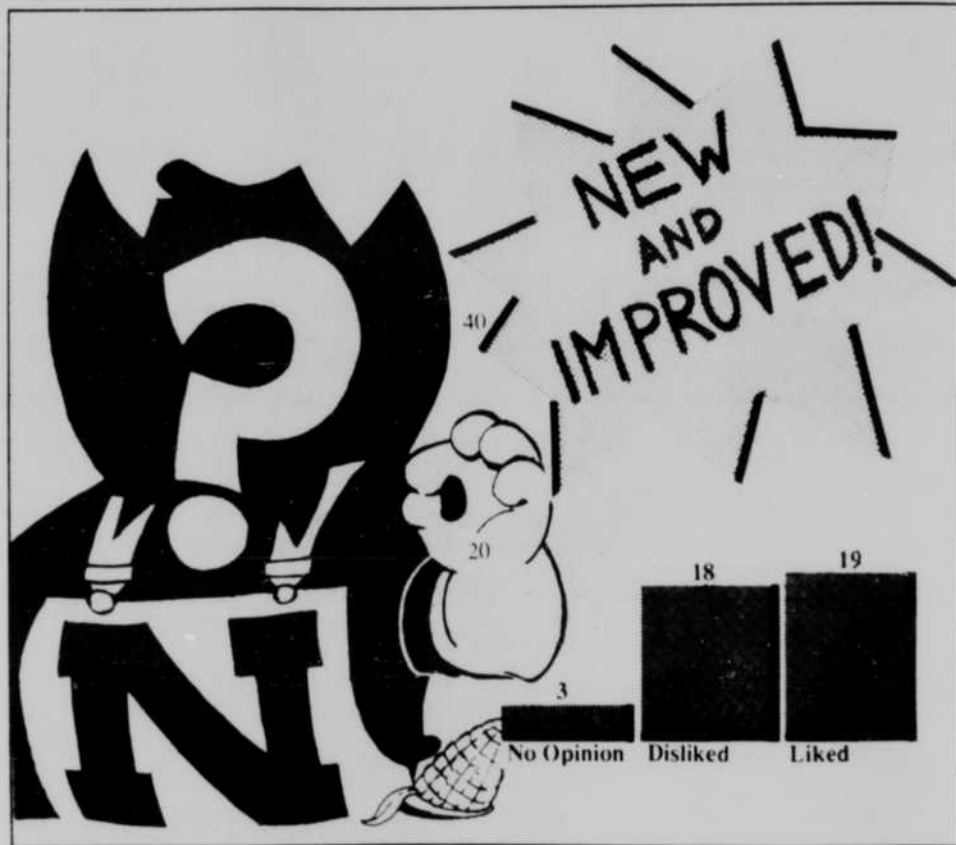

The survey, which was conducted at various points throughout the UNL campus, also found that 45 percent of the students disapproved of the change.

Three of the 40 people surveyed had no opinion.

The survey's results will change in the future because more Cornhusker fans will accept the new mascot, said Gary Fouraker, Nebraska athletic department manager and member of the committee that decided to modify the mascot.

"The South Carolina game (on Oct. 3) was the first time with the new mascot," Fouraker said. "Over time, I feel it will be more accepted."

Fouraker said the Nebraska athletic department decided to spend $1,000 to modify Herbie Husker because people complained about the old mascot.

"We were receiving a number of complaints from people about the old one, plus a number of our alumni didn't like it," Fouraker said. "Also, the old head was falling apart."

Fouraker said that the committee looked at whether Nebraska should have a mascot and what kind of mascot should be used.
