Nee: Loss to ISU threefold; little things become significant

By Mark Derowitsch
Senior Reporter

Three areas separated a win from a loss in Saturday's game against Iowa State, Nebraska basketball coach Danny Nee said Monday.

Nee said at his weekly press conference that Nebraska dropped an 85-84 decision to Iowa State because the Cornhuskers were unable to concentrate on "little things."

"I think the players know when they're playing well or when they haven't," Nee said. "There was just a couple of little things that became significant."

Nee said the differences between the Huskers and Iowa State were free-throw shooting, rebounding and offensive fouls.

The Huskers connected on 18 of 28 free throws, compared to Iowa State's 33 of 40. The Cyclones also pulled down 14 offensive rebounds, and Nebraska turned over the ball six times because of offensive fouls.

"If there was a little more concentration — because those are fundamental parts of the game, we did a lot of things right," Nee said. "Overall, we did enough things to be successful or to be in the game."

Nee said one bright spot in Saturday's game was reserve center Rich van Poelgeest. Van Poelgeest, a 6-foot-9 sophomore, scored a career-high 19 points and grabbed a team-high six rebounds in 19 minutes of action. He hit eight of nine shots from the field and three of five shots from the free-throw line.

"I think it's a great confidence-builder for van Poelgeest," Nee said, "and I think it shows he's getting better. I hope it's a steppingstone."

Nee said van Poelgeest has improved because he is being more active on the court.

"He's really reacting more around the basket," Nee said. "He's making some of those easy shots he missed earlier in the year. But he's active rebounding and on defense."

"He's pretty sound fundamentally. His footwork is solid, and he has a basic understanding of the game."

But Nee said van Poelgeest hasn't always played well this season. He said his practice habits have improved as well as his game.

"It reached a point where the other big guys were playing better than he was and he lost some playing time," Nee said. "He went into a slump and he earned his way out of it. And this is a result — all of a sudden, one night, he puts it all together. It's very pleasing to me."

Nee said the emergence of van Poelgeest and the improvement of freshman Rich King and junior Pete Manning could open up the middle for forward Derrick Vick.

Vick, a senior from Chicago, averages 11.6 points per game.

"Any activity scoring inside will help the rest of the team," Nee said.

NU football ticket lottery in progress

By Mike Kluck

Students who wish to purchase 1988 season football tickets will be able to draw a lottery number March 28 through April 1, associate ticket manager Joe Selig said.

Selig said in order to draw a lottery number, students must present a completed application, cash, personal check or money order and a current full-time student ID at the South Stadium Ticket Office from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. The price for a student ticket is $42, and married students may purchase a spouse ticket for $110.

Selig said the athletic department hopes to have a good distribution of tickets throughout the week.

"My suggestion to students is to come earlier in the week so they may not have to wait in lines as long," Selig said. "In the past, many students and groups have waited to come in until Friday afternoon."

Selig said students will draw lottery numbers when they turn in their application. He said ticket orders will be filled from the largest lottery number to the smallest.

"One person can bring in up to 100 students' applications," Selig said. "It is important for students to be aware that all checks in the group have to match the application or the correct change needs to be attached."

Ticket applications are available at the South Stadium Ticket Office, Administration Building 110 — Student Accounts and the East Union information desk.

Selig said he expects to fill 6,000 applications through the lottery process. He said any student who misses the lottery deadline may apply for a ticket through 4 p.m. Aug. 23.

This year's Nebraska home schedule includes games against Utah State, Arizona State, Nevada-Las Vegas, Oklahoma State, Missouri and Colorado.

COLLEGE STUDENT INCOME.

A good part-time job that doesn't interfere with class schedules, student activities and study time is pretty tough to find in most college towns. That's why the nearby Army Reserve makes so much sense to students.

After completing Basic Training and Advanced Individual Training, you serve one weekend a month (usually two 8-hour days, so Saturday and Sunday evenings are yours). And you earn over $80 a weekend to start. You go to two weeks of annual training at full Army pay.
