

Nighthawks continue tour at Zoo Bar

By Ken Havlat

This week's Zoo Bar schedule is highlighted by veteran blues bar band The Nighthawks tonight and Tony Trischka and Skyline Wednesday.

Band Preview

The Nighthawks are on their first national tour since reforming. Former Wet Willie vocalist Jimmy Hall picks up the slack left by the departure of James Thackery. Also added at the same time was Jimmy Nalls on guitar.

The Nighthawks have been a blues institution almost since their formation in 1973. Mark Wenner's supreme artistry on harmonica complements the definitively solid rhythm section of drummer Pete Ragusa and bassist Jan Zukowski.

'Skyline is considered a strong force in progressive acoustic music today.'

Recently the Nighthawks released a "Live In Europe" album on Varrick/Rounder Records, showcasing them at their live best.

Skyline's last show at the Zoo was supposed to be its last, but a change of heart among the band members has kept the group together so far.

Skyline is considered a strong force in progressive acoustic music today. The folk movement is blooming at a point unseen since the early 1960s, and Trischka's banjo playing will help you understand why.

Cover is $6 for the Nighthawks and $5 for Skyline. Both shows begin about 9:30 p.m.
