

Viola, Eckersley among top AL pitchers

but if he gives Chicago solid pitching down the stretch the Cubs could catch the Mets.

American League

First Baseman — George Brett, Kansas City. Tough choice over the Yankees Don Mattingly, but Brett is having a terrific year.

Second Baseman — Marty Barrett, Boston.

Shortstop — Alan Trammell, Detroit. Trammell has been a great player for years, and this year is no exception.

Third Baseman — Wade Boggs, Boston. Despite a lawsuit from a woman who said she and Boggs had an affair, Boggs' play on the field has not suffered.

Outfielders — Dave Winfield, New York; Jose Canseco, Oakland; Kirby Puckett, Minnesota. Winfield and Canseco have been the two most dominant players in the league. Winfield has been on a tear from opening day, while Canseco has every pitcher in the league psyched-out.

Puckett has proved that his performance last season wasn't fluke, although he was a tough choice over Boston's red hot Mike Greenwell.

Starting Pitcher — Frank Viola, Minnesota.

Relief Pitcher — Dennis Eckersley, Oakland. Despite accusations that he scuffs the baseball, Eckersley gets the nod because he's slammed the door on the opposition all year.

Catcher — Tim Lincecum, Minnesota. Yeah, he's the same guy who batted .190 last year. He's hitting .270 this season, but he's my pick only because nobody else has played enough or played well enough to merit a selection.

Most Valuable Player — Canseco.

Player to Watch: The Yankees' Jack Clark was injured the first month of the season, and then struggled his first two weeks after that. But Clark has been on a roll lately, and his great clutch hitting could save New York this season.
