Landry says Walker 'dominating'

IRVING, Texas (AP) - "America's Team" has become the "The Herschel Walker Cowboys."

It became clear Monday night that the 1988 NFL fate of the Dallas Cowboys rests solely on the performance of Walker.

Walker carried nine times on the winning 81-yard touchdown drive as the Cowboys defeated the Phoenix Cardinals 17-14. Dallas ran 24 plays in the fourth period and Walker touched the ball on 17 of those plays, accounting for 88 of the club's 122 yards.

"That's what I envisioned when I decided to put Tony Dorsett on the bench," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "Herschel can just dominate a game. You can be in perfect position and he will still break a tackle and make a big play."

The loudly objecting 33-year-old Dorsett was traded to Denver so the 26-year-old Walker could become the Cowboys' prime offensive weapon.

"I like to carry the ball a lot," Walker said. "I get into the flow of the game that way."

Walker ran 29 times for 149 yards against the Cardinals.

"Ideally, we like to get the ball into his hands 30 to 35 times a game," Landry said. "Phoenix did a good job of double-teaming Herschel on pass coverage, so we just pitched it to him. He's powerful and always seems to be stronger in the fourth quarter than he is in the first quarter."

Landry did admit he may have stretched Walker to his limit on the 81-yard drive.

"That's the hardest workout he's had since summer camp," Landry said. "I was wondering if he had any spring left in his legs down there."

Walker said he enjoys getting the ball and ducking behind Dallas' 300-pound offensive linemen.

"They are young but they're learning and they do a great job," Walker said. "It's fun to run behind them."

Landry said the Cowboys' are Walker's team.

"I'd buy a ticket just to watch the guy run," the coach said. "I would love to be an offensive lineman for Herschel."

All total, Walker touched the ball receiving or running 32 times against Phoenix and gained 171 yards.

Series to be played at night

NEW YORK (AP) - There will be no day games in the World Series this year but if there is a Game 6 it will be played at 5 p.m., the commissioner's office announced Wednesday in releasing the times for the baseball playoffs.

Game 6 of the World Series, scheduled for the city of the National League champion on Saturday, Oct. 22, will be the only non-night game in the World Series.

Last year, Game 6 started at 4 p.m. EDT but it didn't make much difference since it was inside the Metrodome, the ballpark of the American League champion Minnesota Twins.

The NL playoffs begin on the night of Tuesday, Oct. 4 in the city of the West Division winner. The AL playoffs begin the next night in the city of the East Division winner. The World Series begins Saturday, Oct. 15 in the city of the National League cham-peon.

ABC-TV will televise the league championship series. Al Michaels, Jim Palmer and Tim McCarver will work the National League games while Gary Bender and Joe Morgan will broadcast the American League games.

NBC-TV will broadcast the World Series, with announcers Vin Scully and Joe Garagiola.

AP's Nissenon picks Miami Hurricanes

By Herschel Nissenon
AP Football Writer

Do you know what happened on Sept. 8, 1984?

Even George Bush knows - now - that date had nothing to do with Pearl Harbor.

Clue: Top-ranked Miami visits No. 15 Michigan on Saturday and Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler provides the following hint - "The thing that will hopefully help us is we're playing on our turf."

Answer: On Sept. 8, 1984, Miami suffered its only road loss - 22-14 to Michigan - under Coach Jimmy Johnson. Not counting bowls, Johnson and the Hurricanes have since won 19 straight on the road. Miami also has winning streaks of 13 in a row overall and 33 straight regular-season games.

"I'm not so sure that they're not better than last year's national championship team," says Schembechler, whose only 0-2 start in his 26-year coaching career was at Miami of Ohio in 1965. Michigan hasn't been 0-2 since 1959.

Miami is a 7-point favorite. The pick is . . . Miami 24-14.

Last week's record was 34-19-.642; for the season, 68-27-.718. Against the point spread, last week's mark was only 11-19-.367; for the year, 22-25-.468.

No. 10 Florida State (favored by 2 1/2) at No. 3 Clemson: Clemson 21-17.

Long Beach State at No. 2 UCLA (no line): UCLA 63-0.

Chatwin praises Husker program

By Jeremy Felker
Staff Reporter

Nebraska softball player Ruth Chatwin was surprised to receive a scholarship to play softball at Nebraska. Especially since Chatwin is from the land Down Under.

Chatwin, a senior catcher from Melbourne, Australia, is the first Australian to play softball for the Cornhuskers.

"I'm one of probably 60,000 softballers at home, and I just didn't know that it (the scholarship) was ever going to be real," she said.

Chatwin

Even in Australia, Chatwin said, Nebraska's athletic reputation is growing. The Huskers' softball program is an example, she said.

"Of the schools that recruited me,

Nebraska had the best reputation as far as its softball program was concerned," Chatwin said. "It also has its academics above sports . . . whereas at some schools, it is sports and then academics."

Chatwin has maintained a 3.35 grade point average and was a member of the 1987 GTE Academic All-American 3rd team, the Big Eight Academic Honor Roll and the Academic All-Big Eight softball team.

Chatwin said she has not put softball anywhere near the backseat.

"I believe that if I don't try my hardest or give that 100 percent, 10 years down the road, when I look back on my final year, I'm the only one who's really lost," she said.

The Huskers will be young and inexperienced following the loss of four seniors from the roster this year, but according to Chatwin, inexperience may not be a disadvantage at all.

"They are very young, but they have so much enthusiasm for the sport," she said. "I think the inexperience is really going to be a catalyst too, because every year the preseason rankings are either one, two or three, and that puts a lot of pressure on from the start, whereas right now who cares where we are."

"Right now, we set our fortune and we establish ourselves."

Husker coach Ron Wolforth said the Huskers will achieve success through senior leadership and positive attitudes. Chatwin, he said, will be one of Nebraska's leaders.

"The whole team has that attitude," he said, "but Ruth gives leadership in her judgment on selection of pitches, on the hitting zone and hitting situation."

"She's a clutch hitter," he said.

Wolforth said that last season, Chatwin nearly doubled her 1986 total for runs batted in. Such an improvement, according to Chatwin, is due to a "totally new concept on batting, which I think is very consistent, very effective."

"I think we're the first one in softball (to use the new batting techniques)," she said.

Chatwin said it is because of these new techniques and a positive attitude that a Big Eight title can be attained.

"I don't mean definitely we're going to win, but definitely that is what we are striving for. If we win the Big Eight, everything else will come from that."

Chatwin has another goal entering her senior season.

"I hope that when I finish playing, I will end my career playing for my country in the Olympics," she said. "That's how I want to end my career - on a high note. I don't want to go out in some slow-pitch, beer-drinking league."
