10-year-old tries to exist in Bombay

least the times when the people were able to stand back and forget their plight for awhile, the lighting and the camera seemed to absorb the characters' clothes -- the bright and rich colors traditional of the Indian cloth.

Another scene, when the children were riding in the back of a police truck after being apprehended on the streets, there is a wonderful camera pan of Krishna looking out through the bars of the truck. Here we see how imprisoned all these street children are, how they are put behind the bars of poverty and not allowed to be children.

The acting is a superb blend of non-professional child actors and actresses with professionals. In fact, it lends credibility to the realness of the characters and the real problem which exists in Bombay.

The superb cast along with great direction will leave no question in anyone's mind after viewing the movie -- Nair and company deserved the Camera D'Or and the Prix du Public Awards the film received at the Cannes Film Festival.

Opening for the film is Sally Cruishank's "Face like a Frog." This enchanting film is a sort of adult version of "Sesame Street."

The crayon-colored animated characters wind and mold their way through a fun-house. Filled with fairly innocent perversion ("I'm not wearing any underwear," one character exclaims), the short film shows how people are always tempted to do what they're told not to -- sometimes it's a risk that may turn out good, sometimes bad.

"Salaam Bombay" and "Face Like a Frog" will show Thursday through Sunday at the Sheldon Film Theater. Screening times are at 7 and 9:15 p.m. Matinees show at 12:45 and 3 p.m. on Saturdays and 2:30 and 4:45 p.m. on Sundays.
