Theaters attract weekend crowds for new movies

By Micki Haller

Movie theaters were busy last weekend because of a combination of new movies and returning students, theater managers said.

The area around 13th and P streets was particularly congested. The Stuart Theater, the Douglas 3 and Cinema 1 & 2 are all located near the corner. Lines were apparent at all three theaters at 7:15 p.m. Saturday.

Kent Knudsen, assistant manager of the Stuart Theater, 13th and P streets, said last weekend, especially Saturday, was busy.

Although the movie showing at the Stuart, "Working Girl," has been there since Christmas Day, the show drew 563 people for three shows on Friday, and 1,083 people for five Saturday shows, Knudsen said.

"I don't know what accounts for that," Knudsen said about this weekend's crowds.

In comparison, "A Fish Called Wanda" drew 1,007 on the Saturday of its opening weekend this summer, he said.

As a result of the crowds, a movie employee directed the crowds outside the Stuart to the correct lines. Knudsen said the Stuart has to make sure it has enough staff to handle the large audiences.

When a large audience is present, the Stuart starts the movie a little late so people can get concessions, he said.

At the Douglas 3, "Mississippi Burning," "Beaches" and "The Accidental Tourist" are showing.

According to Pat Stahly, manager of the Douglas 3, the movies' novelty may have something to do with the long lines.

"All three are new movies," she said. "We've been fairly busy. Saturday pretty much sold out on a lot of them."
