

NU basketball recruit to undergo shoulder surgery

By Steve Sipple
Staff Reporter

Nebraska basketball recruit Bruce Chubick's shoulder injury probably won't affect his career as a Cornhusker.

But Chubick, a two-time All-State selection from Atkinson West Holt, said his dislocated shoulder occurred at a bad time.

Chubick injured his right shoulder while diving for a ball during Atkinson West Holt's final regular-season game. Atkinson West Holt, the state's No. 1-rated Class C-1 team at the time, still managed to advance to the district final before losing 51-50 to Battle Creek at Norfolk High School.

That loss cost West Holt, which finished 21-1, the chance to defend its 1988 Class C-1 state title. Chubick played against Battle Creek despite his injury, but he said West Holt's fate may have been different had he been healthy.

"The injury really couldn't have come at a worse time," Chubick said. "I don't know if we would have won state, but we should have got there. I was about 60-percent healthy in the district final. I couldn't play well inside -- I didn't have any strength."

Chubick still scored 31 points. He said teams normally double- and triple-team him, but Battle Creek didn't.

Chubick will undergo surgery March 28, said Bruce Chubick Sr.,

Atkinson-West Holt's boy's basketball coach.

Chubick Sr., who coached his son in high school, said the surgery will be performed by Nebraska team physicians Dr. Tom Heiser and Dr. Pat Clare at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center in Lincoln. Chubick said his son's rehabilitation period should be about three months.

Three long months, Chubick Jr. said.

"It's like Larry Bird (of the Na-ton Basketball Association's Boston Celtics) a few years back," he said. "He was deciding whether to have surgery on his bone spurs (in his heel). For him, there was no good time.

"There's no good time when you're dedicated."

But Chubick Jr., a right-handed shooter, said he'll play basketball during his rehabilitation period.

"I'll get the ball out and work with my left hand," he said.

Lack of depth feared in offensive line, NU coach says

guard spots and left tackle are undecided entering spring drills.

"Steve's a big, strong kid with a lot of athletic ability," Tenopir said. Tenopir said Roschal will be given a chance to prove himself at right guard.

Tom Punt is the leading candidate to win the starting job at left tackle, Tenopir said. Punt, a 6-8, 270-pound junior from Sioux Center, Iowa, re-dshirted in 1987 and played as a reserve last year.

Terry Eyman, a 6-6, 265-pound junior from Omaha Bryan High School, goes into spring practice behind Punt, but has a chance to win the starting job, Tenopir said.

Jim Wanek and Chris O'Gara will be fighting for the starting left guard assignment.

O'Gara, from Madison, Wis., switched to tight end last spring and played sparingly behind Todd Millikan because of injuries.

Tenopir said Wanek, a 6-foot junior from Aurora, will probably be the starter at tight end.

"Wanek probably has the upper hand because he's played a little last season," Tenopir said.

Another concern of Tenopir is depth. He said the Cornhuskers' tough schedule early last season didn't give them time to develop depth.

"We had a couple of tough games early on, so we didn't get to play the second and third team as much," he said. "Getting young kids playing time early in the year is critical to their development."

Tenopir said that's the best thing about spring drills -- everybody gets a chance to play.

"We at least want to come out of the spring with a solid two-deep at every position," he said. "That just didn't work out last year."
