Eventual rhythm leads Huskers to a three set victory

By Cory Golden
Staff Reporter

After being shaken and rattled in the first set, the Nebraska volleyball team found its rhythm and rolled over the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Nebraska defeated Iowa 15-11, 15-12, 15-6 before a crowd of 1,257 Saturday at the NU Coliseum.

With the Cornhuskers leading 4-0 in the first set, Nebraska junior outside hitter Linda Barsness was helped off the floor by the Nebraska trainers after suffering a knee injury.

Barsness tore an anterior circulate ligament and is out for the remainder of the season.

Nebraska coach Terry Pettit said Barsness probably will have surgery later this week.

Pettit said the loss of Barsness knocked Nebraska out of sync in the first set.

"I think it shook us a bit," Pettit said. "I think we never did get into a rhythm."

Nebraska increased its lead to 6-0 before Iowa battled back to pull within one at 11-10 in the first set. Nebraska trailed by scores of 7-3 and 12-9 in the second and 3-0 in third before winning all three games.

Pettit said it took a little time for the Huskers to adjust to playing without Barsness, who led Nebraska in kills last season with 465.

"Toward the middle of the second game we started to get the ball to (Janet) Kruse and our middle and we got into a rhythm," Pettit said.

Kruse finished with 12 kills and a .409 hitting percentage. Senior All-American Virginia Stahr had 10 kills with a .714 hitting percentage.

Barsness' replacement, freshman Debbie Brand, of Adelaide, South Australia, contributed four kills and a team-high eight digs.

Pettit said he was pleased with the play of Brand.

"That's a pretty tough situation to put a freshman in," he said. "It's one thing to put a freshman in when they know they can come back out. It's another thing when you know you need to produce. Debbie's an experienced player. I thought she handled it really well."

Barsness became the Huskers' second outside hitter to be sidelined because of injury. Sophomore Cris Hall hasn't played yet this season because of back spasms.

Pettit said he was pleased with the way the Huskers played in absence of two experienced outside hitters.

"Iowa's a good team," he said. "It is not an easy team, more importantly, it's an experienced team and it's a team that's just not going to give up."

Iowa coach Ruth Nelson said the unranked Hawkeyes will be a legitimate top-20 team this year.

"We'll be fine this season," Nelson said. "We will be a good, solid top-20 team by the end of the season."

in brief SPORTS

Captains are chosen

Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne announced that four players have been chosen as captains and four others have been awarded scholarships.

Osborne said quarterback Gerry Gdowski, outside linebacker Jeff Mills, linebacker Randall Jobman and offensive tackle Doug Glaser all will serve as captains. The seniors were selected through a vote of their teammates.

Osborne also said tight end Monte Kratzenstein, punter Mike Stigge, center David Edal and outside linebacker Dan Svehla were awarded walk-on scholarships.

Huskers drop in poll

Two major changes occurred in this week's Associated Press Top-25 football poll.

Notre Dame, which opened its season by defeating Virginia 36-13 in the Kickoff Classic, moved from second to first in this week's poll. Michigan, which opens its season against the Fighting Irish Sept. 16, dropped from first to second.

The second major change involved Nebraska, which dropped from third to fourth. The Cornhuskers open their season Saturday against Northern Illinois.

In addition to Notre Dame, Michigan and Nebraska, the remainder of the top-10 teams in the The AP Top 25 included third-ranked Miami, fifth-ranked Auburn and sixth-ranked UCLA. Arkansas, Oklahoma, Colorado and Clemson rounded out the top 10.
