ord," Baty said. "Maybe we can turn a few more people on."

Friday and Saturday, The Hipsters, a band new to Lincoln, will play at Bash Riprocks. They are popular with the college-age crowds in Kearney and Sioux City, Iowa. Let's see how they catch on here.

Friday and Saturday The Limit will play its clean and energetic pop sounds at Chesterfield's, lower level of 245 N. 13th St.

BoDeans tickets still available

Tickets still are available for the Sept. 22 BoDeans concert in Omaha.

Tickets are $13.50 for the Friday evening concert to be held at the Peony Park Ballroom, 8100 Cass St.

Outlets include Pickles Records & Tapes in Lincoln and Omaha, as well as Homer's Record Stores, the Ranch Bowl and Peony Park in Omaha.

Doors open at 7 p.m. and the show begins at 8 p.m. The opening band is to be announced.

Friday and Saturday, On Tap will appear at The Mountains, 311 S. 11th St.

On Sunday, Crosby, Stills & Nash will give a rare acoustic performance at the Nebraska State Fair. The appearance at the fair marks the opening of a new tour for the trio that recorded a large number of hits during the '70s and '80s.

Monday, the Tablerockers will play at the Zoo Bar. The Tablerockers is the house band at the Zoo and its reputation for playing good solid blues speaks for itself.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Mark Hummel & the Sue Foley Band will play at the Zoo Bar. Mark Hummel is as energetic a blues harp man as there is, and he was all over the stage and bar the last time he played with his old band at the Zoo. Now, he is teamed up with Sue Foley, a young guitarist from Canada, and her traditional blues band. This team-up is an exciting combination of musical sounds and influences that practically guarantees to be an outstanding show.
