

Daily Nebraskan

September 29, 1989

University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Vol. 89 No. 24

CORRECTION: In the front page story in Diversions (DN, Sept. 28) the year given for the completion of the State Capitol was incorrect. The building was completed in 1932. The Daily Nebraskan regrets this error.

WEATHER:

Friday, mostly sunny and warm, high of 80, winds northeast from 5 to 15 miles per hour becoming southeast. Fair Friday night with a low in the 50s. Saturday, sunny, breezy and very warm, high in the mid- to upper-90s. Warm and dry Sunday, with high in 80s and low in 50s. Becoming cooler with a chance of showers Monday and Tuesday, high in 50s to 60s and lows in 30s to 40s.

INDEX

News Digest 2
 Editorial 4
 Sports 6
 Arts & Entertainment 9
 Classifieds 11

ASUN asks for action

Rally planned to protest parking problems

By Roger Price
 Staff Reporter

To protest current parking problems, a student rally will be held Wednesday on the Union Plaza, the ASUN Parking Task Force decided Thursday.

The protest, which will begin at 11:20 a.m., will follow a special session of the ASUN senate called to pass a resolution stating the need for more student parking.

The protest then will move to the Administration Building where the task force plans to "pack" the second floor hall in front of the administrative offices.

Senators and other concerned students will give speeches. Task force members discussed the possibility of signing petitions and burning parking handbooks at the rally.

ASUN President Bryan Hill said "It's time to quit complaining -- it's time for action."

Patrick Wyatt, chairman of the task force, said that if the protest is to succeed, a large student turnout will be necessary.

The task force plans to promote the rally through announcements to fraternities and sororities, distributing fliers, hanging posters, meeting with the Residence Hall Association on Sunday and contacting other student groups such as Early Warning!

"There are a lot of people who don't think there is a parking problem," Wyatt said, "and it's time to show them that there is."

"When we first formed this committee, we promised to involve students, and now we are doing it."

Hill said some administrators don't see a problem, while others are on "our side."

'There are a lot of people who don't think there is a parking problem and it's time to show them that there is.'

--Wyatt

At the rally, Hill said, the task force plans to recognize those administrators who support student concerns.

The idea of having a protest originated when the task force was trying to develop a method to make all members of the administration to understand students' frustration with parking.

Most task force members raised their hands when asked if they had fielded many complaints from their constituents about parking.

Wyatt told senators that they must start keeping track of these complaints so ASUN can show the administration that parking is a problem that concerns more than just a few vocal students.

Hill said that although a survey of student lots is being conducted by the parking office, faculty lots must be looked at as well to see if they are as full as student lots.

Senator suggests Hoch step down as chairman

By Jerry Guenther
 Senior Reporter

A state senator suggested Tuesday to a group of University of Nebraska-Lincoln students that regent Nancy Hoch should step down as chairman of the NU Board of Regents. Thursday, he said that he offered the suggestion to the public for debate.

Sen. Scott Moore of Stromsburg, speaking to members of the Government Liaison Committee, said Hoch should step down as regents chairman, yet retain her regent seat.

Moore, speaking from his home Thursday, said he offered the suggestion so the issue of firing former NU President Ronald Roskens could be put to rest.

"This whole thing has drug on for two months; and it's obvious to me it's not going to go away," he said.

Moore said Hoch and other regents are "ignorant of the political process" if they believe the public will forget the issue.

Because the regents have not disclosed their reasons for firing Roskens, Moore said, the public has had to speculate why Roskens was dismissed.

Moore said he heard speculation that Roskens and Hoch may have had a poor working relationship.

If that is the case, Moore said, then it might help to put the incident to rest by having Hoch step down as chairman.

"The longer this goes on," Moore said, "the more potentially damaging to the university system and the state."

Moore said he made the suggestion because he thinks Hoch may have difficulty communicating NU's needs to the Nebraska Legislature.

As chairman of the regents, Moore said, one of Hoch's main roles is to be a spokesperson for NU.

Because of incidents like Roskens' firing and the handling of Kearney State College joining the NU system, Moore said, Hoch may have a credibility problem with some

See MOORE on 5

Duffy's receives ticket for pornographic poster

By Mick Dyer
 Staff Reporter

A Lincoln bar was ticketed for alleged distribution of pornography Wednesday after police received several complaints about offensive promotional posters.

Lt. Gary Engel, unit commander of the technical investigations unit, said three individuals complained about promotional posters for the band Castration playing at Duffy's Tavern, 1412 O St. The posters were distributed throughout downtown Lincoln.

The poster depicts a young woman standing naked except for shoes, socks and a tank-top shirt pulled up to expose her breasts. Her head is tilted back and a rolled up piece of cloth gags her mouth. Ropes wind tightly around her body, ending in a slip knot around her neck.

Deputy Attorney General Eugene Crump said that sometimes there is a fine line between free speech, which is protected by the First Amendment, and pornography, which is not.

"The standard is, does this thing have any redeeming qualities or is this patently offensive and appealing to the prurient interests," he said.

Crump said the issue is clouded further because what is considered pornographic in Lincoln may or may not be considered pornographic in

New York City, and vice versa.

He said the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled, therefore, that community standards are to be used to gauge what is pornography. Community standards are determined in the courtroom, with jurors who reflect the mood of the community and judge whether an item is pornographic, Crump said.

Steve Schulz, owner of Project Import record store and musical coordinator for Duffy's, said the posters were designed and printed by Castration, a Kansas City, Mo., industrial noise band. He said Duffy's distributed the posters because the pub was obligated by a contract to distribute the band's promotional posters.

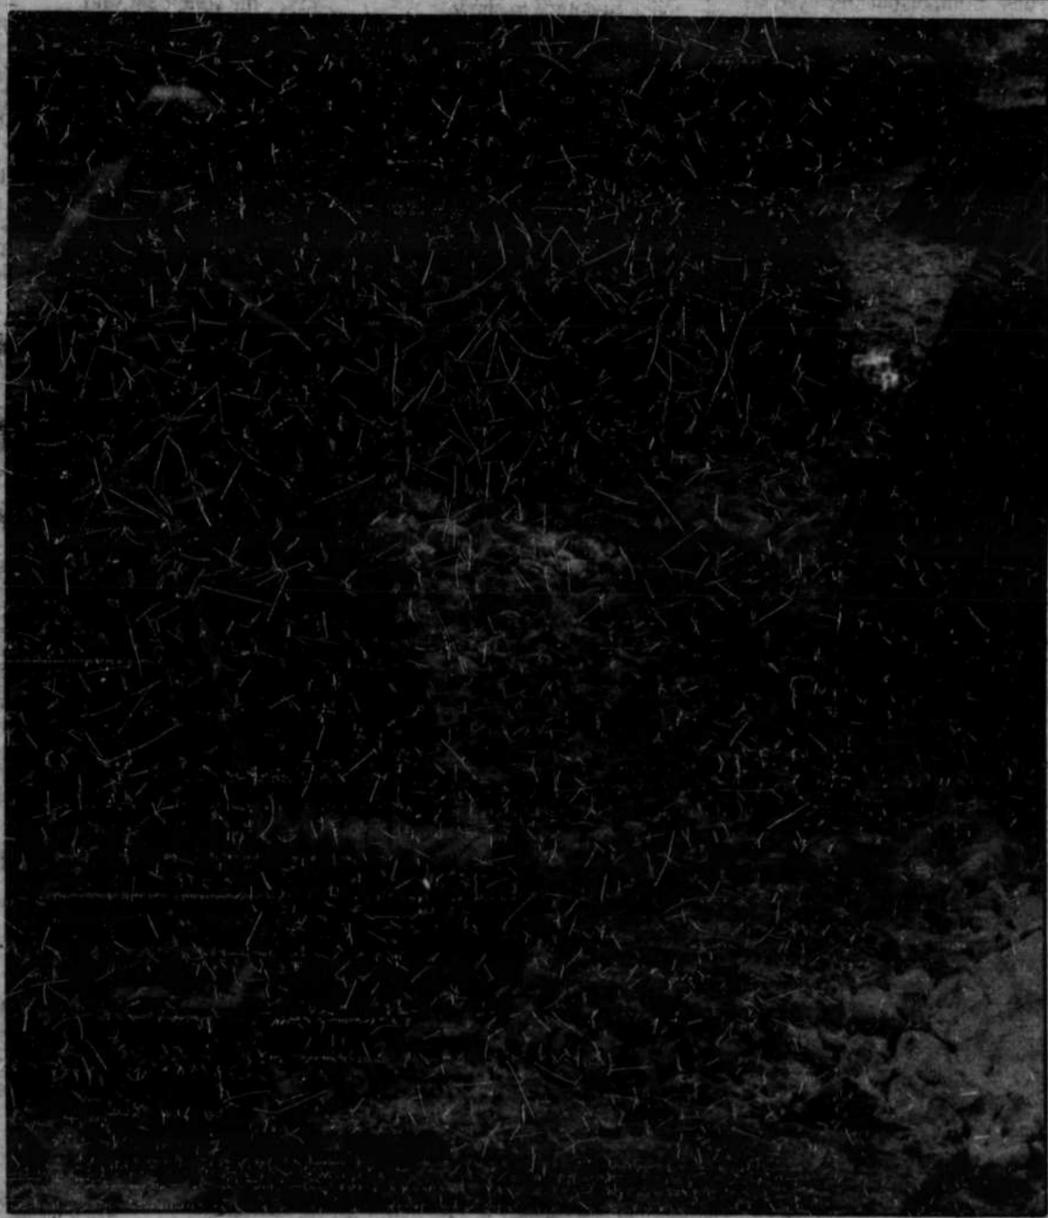

Of about 200 posters the band sent Duffy's, only 50 were posted, Schulz said, and they didn't stay up for long.

"I think a lot of them were torn down ahead of time, even a day before the show," Schulz said.

Schulz said Duffy's received negative feedback about the posters as early as Tuesday. He said that two women came into Duffy's that afternoon and expressed their disgust with the poster.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, a policeman brought a poster into Duffy's, Schulz said. The policeman said he had talked to a woman with young

See POSTER on 5

William Lauer/Daily Nebraskan

Small shovel for a big hole

Ralph Miller, of the UNL grounds department, puts the finishing touches on restored Maxwell Crank which is part of the Maxwell Arboretum on East Campus. The arboretum, along with other botanical gardens on both UNL campuses, officially will be dedicated next Friday.

Cisneros says education key to future

By Lisa Bolin
 Staff Reporter

Education is the key to America's future, said Henry Cisneros, former mayor of San Antonio, Texas, during a speech at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Union Centennial Room Thursday.

"A nation is known by the school it keeps," Cisneros said.

America is "standing on the edge of a new decade," he said, because it is facing increased worldwide competition.

The United States is more politically and economically tied to the rest of the world than in the past, Cisneros said.

America's relationship with the world will be determined by the understanding future leaders have of other cultures, he said.

"We need to focus on education like we've never done before," he said.

Cisneros said a high dropout rate for the nation's students does harm to more than just the dropouts.

"America is paying the price economically," he said.

Cisneros supported his statement with research done on school dropouts of all ages in Texas. Last year, he said, 86,000 Texas students quit school, causing a loss of $16 billion in society because of the gap in income between high school dropouts and graduates. Of the $16 billion, $4 billion would have been taxable, he said.

To deal with the number of dropouts, he said, the state would have to pay $18 billion for welfare, food stamps, unemployment compensation, job placement, jails, judicial systems, police protection and adult

See CISNEROS on 5