Dallas, Cotton Bowl may give NU fans consolation if Colorado wins Big Eight

By Paul Domeier
Staff Reporter

Dallas may be the destination for those Nebraska fans who have their vacation money saved up, waiting for the outcome of the Nebraska-Colorado game to decide where to go for New Year's Day.

Nebraska has not been to the Cotton Bowl since 1980, when it dropped a 17-14 decision to Houston. With Oklahoma and Nebraska ruling the Big Eight since then, Cotton Bowl organizers were reluctant to take the conference runner-up because the Sooners face Texas at the Cotton Bowl every fall.

That meant if Nebraska beat the Sooners, with the loser going to the Cotton Bowl, Oklahoma would have made a second trip to Dallas, possibly for a rematch with the Longhorns. The Southwest Conference champion receives an automatic berth in the Cotton Bowl.

The NCAA has taken care of that problem this season by putting Oklahoma on probation. Meanwhile, the Buffaloes have joined the Cornhuskers at the top of the Big Eight.

Barring an upset, the Nebraska-Colorado game Nov. 4 will decide who goes to the Orange Bowl and who goes somewhere else. Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl, said Dallas is looking to be that someplace else.

"Nebraska is always a viable candidate for any bowl," he said.

Brock had only good things to say about Nebraska.

"Three of the most delightful experiences we have had have been with the University of Nebraska," Brock said.

He said the community and local merchants love to bring the Huskers and their fans to town.

A Cotton Bowl official will be in Stillwater, Okla., for the Nebraska-Oklahoma State game Saturday, he said. Another will be at the Colorado-Kansas game. Brock said it's obvious which teams the officials will be concentrating on because Oklahoma State is also on probation and bowls are not interested in Kansas.

The Jayhawks, who were 1-10 last season, are off to a 2-4 start. Included in their losses was a 24-20 setback to the Iowa State Cyclones.

Brock said the Cotton Bowl is sending representatives to only three other games this weekend.

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney said the Fiesta Bowl and the Freedom Bowl also are sending representatives to Stillwater.

He said he has received generic fliers from a number of representatives, but he hasn't had formal communication with any bowl representatives. Last week was the first week visits by representatives were allowed.

Devaney said all the New Year's Day bowls are attractive. Nebraska only rates them financially, he said. If the team has a choice between bowls on the selection day -- which is Nov. 25 this year -- the players get to pick their destination.

what they need. Look at last season's showcase double-header against eventual national champion Texas.

Nebraska was swept by the Longhorns in the first match, but came back to win in five games the next night.

The split gave the Huskers the right to say they defeated the NCAA's best, and Texas gained valuable experience in preparation for its title run.

This year's feature can do the same thing, even if Pettit didn't plan it that way.

Two matches at home against the top-ranked team are perfect for the fans and perfect for the program.

If Nebraska takes one match from Hawaii, the Huskers will show they can compete with the premier teams on the West Coast.

If the Huskers sweep, it will be another hint that they are on their way to the Final Four.
