

'Dad' goes straight for the heartstrings

By Julie Naughton
Staff Reporter

"Dad" is an excellent movie that hits close to home, and students who have elderly grandparents (or parents) will be able to relate easily to the story.

"Dad" tells the story of Jake Tremont, a retired Lockheed employee living in Los Angeles. Jake lives with his wife, Bette (Olympia Dukakis). The movie starts with a typical grandma/grandpa breakfast scene -- eating toast, clipping coupons and talking. In the next scene, Bette has a heart attack at the supermarket.

As the family is left to deal with Bette's heart attack, doctors discover that Jake has colon cancer. These tragedies force Jake and Bette's somewhat self-centered son John to realize that his parents are growing old.

In the process of rediscovering his relationship to his parents, the New York financier becomes closer to his estranged son, Billy (Ethan Hawke). He also learns to relate better to his sister, Annie (Kathy Baker) and his brother-in-law, Mario (Kevin Spacey). Jake's illness forces each family member to examine what they want from life, and forces each family member to examine how they relate to the other people in their lives.

All of the actors give gripping performances. One of the best performances is turned in by Lemmon. He is truly astounding as Jake Tremont, a man who will remind many viewers of their own parents. Jake wants nothing more than for his family to be happy, but what he doesn't seem to realize is that it's OK if he's happy, too. Lemmon does an excellent job of conveying this feeling.

Olympia Dukakis is great as the feisty, strong-willed Bette Tremont. Bette is the mouth of the Tremont family, and is fiercely protective of her family. At times, Bette is overbearing, but Dukakis manages to keep Bette from being too unbearable. Dukakis handles Bette with compassion and genuine affection.

Ted Danson plays John Tremont, who is forced to face his parents' mortality. Danson is believable and touching as John, although he does struggle in a few places. Overall, "Dad" is an excellent representation of Danson's talent. Danson, also of the television show "Cheers" and the movie "Cousins," is no stranger to the silver screen.

Ethan ("Dead Poets Society") Hawke plays Billy, a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz. Billy is hostile toward his father and caring toward his grandfather. Jake's illness draws Billy and John together, and Hawke does a great job of breaking down the walls of mistrust that have surrounded Billy and his father.

"Dad" is a weeper in the tradition of "Terms Of Endearment." This is a very realistic movie, and one that will force children to deal with their parents' aging process. It is a movie that will hit very close to home for many members of its audience.

"Dad" is based on the William Wharton novel and is written for the screen and co-produced by Gary David ("Family Ties") Goldberg. The executive producers are Steven Spielberg, Kathleen Kennedy and Frank Marshall.

Right and wrong ways of interviewing

WRONG Gosh, I heard you were ugly, but you don't look that bad.	WRONG Yes, I could work at your bank. I was head librarian when I was in prison.	WRONG A sweaty jogging outfit. Can we make this quick? I really need a shower.	WRONG OH YEAH! WHY DON'T YOU GET A TOUPEE THAT MATCHES YOUR HAIR!
