Annette Murrell, The Tablerockers are on par with any national blues act. She brings the house down. When Murrell sings, the audience is quiet and still and a few people shudder, their souls on the verge of erupting, like crystal glasses perfectly in tune with her powerful voice. All eyes and ears are up front, and minds and hearts are captivated.

Tuesday, The Corsairs will play at the Zoo Bar. The Corsairs is a Lincoln-based band that exclusively plays '60s rock by such favorites as The Rolling Stones, The Kinks and Eric Burden and the Animals.

'Always' funny, suspenseful

By Mark Bestul
Staff Reporter

"Always," directed by Stephen Spielberg and starring Richard Dreyfuss and Holly Hunter, is worth the price of a movie ticket.

The setting of the movie is the Pacific Northwest, where firefighters happens to him after he dies.

Dreyfuss is sent back among the living to be a pilot's subconscious inspiration, to help this guy make decisions. But the pilot doesn't know this, and thinks that Dreyfuss' voice is his own thoughts.

Over the course of time, the new pilot runs into Dreyfuss' old girlfriend (Holly Hunter) and falls in love with her.

From here, the movie deals with Dreyfuss trying to wrestle with the fact that this guy he has been assigned to follow around is in love with his former girlfriend.

Dreyfuss makes this seemingly zany plot work. He plays the role of a dead but jealous man quite well, and his character is more likable after he dies. His personality changes throughout the movie as he tries to adapt to his new state.

This is what makes the movie interesting: whether Dreyfuss will accept his new situation or keep fighting it with it.

The movie is enjoyable. There are several parts in the movie that were funny, as well as several scenes that are suspenseful, all which makes the movie entertaining.

"Always" is playing at the Cinema 1 & 2, 201 N. 13th St.
