Huskers

I'm sorry to say it, but those days are gone. Nebraska's string of 19-consecutive seasons of finishing among the nation's top 10 in either The Associated Press or United Press International polls ended this year with the drubbing at the hands of the Seminoles.

Nebraska remains a great program, and will continue for many years to have good teams. But unless changes are made in the offensive scheme and defensive secondary, the Huskers will continue to be ranked higher than they deserve.

After the game, Osborne said that with a few more mistakes, the Huskers "could have been blown out."

These are not the words of a coach living in football reality. Yo, Tom, losing by 24 points is a blowout in anyone's book.

Well, almost anyone. I guess the coach that got blown out doesn't see it that way.

But criticism of Osborne and his outdated offensive play-calling brings tongue-lashing responses by self-appointed Husker "superfans," who scold the "rotten, fair-weather fans" and demand that they pack their bags and move to Oklahoma.

What an interesting concept! I guess if you don't give your heart and soul to the Husker football factory, you forfeit your right to exist as a Nebraska citizen.

Nothing like setting good priorities. And please, save the crap about Osborne being the winningest active coach in college football. What coach couldn't win at least 10 games a season with Nebraska's schedule?

I'm sure criticism like this will earn countless letters and grumbles, and rhetorical questions like "Do you think you could do any better than Osborne does?"

Maybe, maybe not. But for over $100,000 a year, like Osborne earns, I'd sure as hell try.

But Missouri is a great team."

Hayes said the 6-7 Huskers can't be distracted by the two losses to start the Big Eight season, especially with a game against Chicago State Tuesday night at the Sports Center.

"We did what we had to do today, and we lost," Hayes said. "Now, we've got to come in Monday, practice hard and hopefully get a win on Tuesday."
