tion of their schedule, which begins March 30 against Kansas.

"That's our focus," Sanders said. "Everything we do from now on is for that."

Sanders said this year has been challenging because he has assumed the role of the Huskers' pitching coach. Sanders last served as Nebraska's pitching and hitting coach in 1982.

Sanders said he enjoys his new pitching duties.

"Being a pitching coach again is like having a new job," he said. "But I enjoy it. It's an important part of the game."

Sanders said his new duties have forced him to split time working with Nebraska's hitters and pitchers. He said assistant coaches Larry Mims, Paul Meyers and Steve Gillespie instruct the Husker hitters when he is working with the pitchers.

Gillespie is a former coach at Fort Hays (Kan.) College, while Meyers and Mims are a pair of former Husker players who are working their way through the San Diego and San Francisco minor-league systems.

"All of our coaches have worked very hard," Sanders said. "They've enjoyed the challenge."

Sanders said he is confident that Nebraska will have a good season. He said the Huskers continue to display the work ethic that is required to win.

"This is a good group. We've had a good business-type attitude," Sanders said. "This group has demonstrated a workmen's-like approach."

Huskers

Suits agreed with Nee.

"I think the biggest thing tonight was that our best player got hurt in practice yesterday and didn't even dress (for the game)," Suits said. "When you take the best one off our team, it's not like there's somebody else out there to carry the load."

"And, we didn't shoot very well."

Nebraska's Dapreis Owens started at forward for the Huskers, scoring 13 points and pulling down three rebounds.

Nee said Owens performed well for his first start at Nebraska.

"I think moving Dapreis into the lineup helped us a little tonight," Nee said.

Owens said he was confident going into the game, both of his own ability as well as Nebraska's chances for a win.

"I felt all right," Owens said. "I found out two days ago I was starting tonight, and I was really excited. But not nervous."

"We knew coming into this game that Chicago State's record was not so good, but we also knew we had to play well. I think we came through."

Nee said he thought the Huskers manipulated Chicago State well.

"I was really pleased with the way we handled their zone defenses, and their junk defenses," he said. "Sometimes, they had a box-and-one on (Husker forward) Ray Richardson. I was pleased, because I was worried that without Clifford Scales and with Keith Moody moving to the point, we would be in trouble."

Nebraska led 43-23 at half time, then extended its lead by as much as 37 in the second half. Through one nine-minute stretch, Nebraska outscored Chicago State 30-8.

"In the second half, they got all relaxed and happy," Suits said of the Huskers. "When you get 25 (points) ahead, it all comes really easy."

"In the first half, we couldn't make a shot. I honestly thought we played pretty well. We ran them out of their man-to-man defense and made them go to zone, but we weren't making a lot of shots."

The Cougars shot 31.4 percent from the field in the game's first 20 minutes, connecting on only 11 of 35 shots. Chicago State missed all nine of its 11 first-half three-point-shot attempts.

Meanwhile, the Huskers hit 12 of 33 shots from the field, and made 5 of 7 three-point attempts during the first half.

Carl Hayes and Richardson led the Huskers with 15 points each, while center Rich King added 14. Dapreis Owens and Richard van Poelgeest scored 13 points each.

Chicago State forward James Parker scored 25 to guide the Cougars, while Lu Parker added 12.

Chicago State, now 2-14 on the season, will play Youngstown State Saturday night in Chicago. Nebraska faces Oklahoma State in Stillwater, Okla., Saturday night.
