

Catch a Peak of Colorado Next Summer

University of Colorado at Boulder

What will you be doing next summer? The same old thing? Or will you ...

Catch the challenge. Attend the 1990 CU-Boulder Summer Session with over 500 courses, including Intensive Beginning Japanese, Women in the Arts, and Rocky Mountain Ecology, to name just a few.

Catch a bargain. Summer tuition at the Boulder campus is lower than during the regular academic year.

Catch 1,000 peaks. Colorado has more than 1,000 spectacular mountains above 10,000 feet and 53 peaks soaring over 14,000 feet. Your only obstacle will be deciding which ones to climb, hike, or bike up.

Four terms to fit your schedule. Classes for first term begin June 4, 1990.

Call (303) 492-2456 or mail the coupon for a CU-Boulder 1990 Summer Session Catalog, which contains everything you need to know about special courses, registration, housing, tuition and fees, financial aid, services, and class schedules.

Foes to discuss truce extension in Azerbaijan

MOSCOW (AP) - Armenian and Azerbaijani fighters began withdrawing from a key battlefront on Sunday, and the bitter enemies agreed to discuss extending the truce to other parts of the volatile region, activists reported.

The Armenian National Movement agreed to conditions demanded by the Azerbaijani People's Front for peace talks that are to begin Wednesday in Riga, Latvia, according to the Latvian People's Front, which is sponsoring the talks.

Both sides now say they will discuss troop withdrawals, refugees and other humanitarian concerns, but not the pivotal territorial dispute that triggered the hostilities, said Artis Erglis of the Latvian People's Front.

Armenians demand control of Nagorno-Karabakh, an enclave of Azerbaijan populated largely by Armenians. Azerbaijan is predominantly Shiite Moslem, while most Armenians are Christians. The two Soviet republics have feuded intermittently over Nagorno-Karabakh for two years.

The conflict burst into anti-Armenian riots on Jan. 13 in Baku, the Azerbaijani capital, and led to battles between Armenians and Azerbaijanis in the countryside.

At least 197 people have been killed in the neighboring republics since Jan. 13.

The nationalist movements in the Baltic republics offered to mediate the conflict, a sign of how much clout the burgeoning movements have gained in the past year and their concern over unrest that requires Kremlin intervention to control.

Yusif Samedugli, a board member of the Azerbaijani People's Front, confirmed in a telephone interview from Baku on Sunday that Azerbaijani representatives would attend talks in the Latvian capital.

Samedugli said the People's Front in Tbilisi, the capital of neighboring Georgia, also volunteered to mediate, and the Azerbaijanis will send a representative there as well.

Militants began withdrawing without incident Sunday from the border between Armenia and Nakhichevan, an Azerbaijani territory bounded by Armenia, Iran and Turkey, according to Samedugli and Armenian activist Rafaci Popoyan in the Armenian capital, Yerevan.

Last week, activists agreed to a truce at the border, one of the most bitterly contested areas in the region.

The two sides agreed to patrol roads near the border with groups of no more than 10 unarmed men. The action will leave security along the border zone to Soviet troops, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Samedugli said a preliminary agreement was reached on holding negotiations on a similar disengagement on the border of Azerbaijan and Nagorno-Karabakh, and in the Shaumyan and Khanlar districts of Azerbaijan near Nagorno-Karabakh.

Tass said separate talks produced a hostage exchange -- 17 Armenians for 22 Azerbaijanis in the Khanlar district. But Popoyan said three other Armenian hostages remained in Azerbaijani hands and two were feared dead.
