

Faculty backs senate restructuring

From Staff Reports

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate announced Tuesday that faculty members, in a referendum by mail, overwhelmingly supported a restructuring proposal.

Under the plan, the senate would increase from 60 to 90 members and would be renamed the Academie Senate. A separate UNL Assembly would consist of the chancellor, five vice chancellors, three deans and other faculty members.

Senate representation would include one representative for every five or more faculty members in a department. Currently, each senator represents 25 faculty members in one or more departments.

Faculty members approved the proposal by a vote of 363-39 in the referendum. The proposal still must be approved by the NU Board of Regents.

Faculty Senate President James McShane said the proposed changes would be effective in representing UNL faculty members.

"It's certainly worth a try," he said.

itself," and all the information students need about OCR is provided in one newsletter.

CFA member Brad Brunz said, "Two thousand people coming through the door is advertisement enough for campus recreation."

The committee will continue discussion of the campus recreation budget Thursday, after considering some line items Tuesday.

The University Health Center also submitted its 1990-91 budget request Tuesday.

Kunle Ojikutu, director of the health center, said UHC is requesting an additional 58 cents per student per semester for 1990-91, which would bring its student assessment to $66.30 per semester.

CFA will vote on the health center request Thursday. The student unions will present their 1990-91 budget requests immediately following the vote.

see it in action."

Foster said, "The more they (students) learn about it, the more receptive they'll be."

James Vihstadt, a Harper senator, is trying to get a recycling program similar to Williams' started in his complex.

"We are trying to come up with a uniform program for the halls to follow," Vihstadt said.

Williams said he wants to get recycling started in greek houses as well.

Williams said he and Vihstadt will present a proposal to the Residence Hall Association to start a campuswide recycling program.

place receptacles in Cather and Pound. Keeshan said he would empty the bins and keep 60 percent of the profits, giving the remaining 40 percent to the residence halls.

Kristin Foster, Pound Hall president, said Cather/Pound officials decided it would be easier and more profitable for the halls to collect the cans.

"We can do the same thing (that Keeshan suggested)," Foster said. "We have devised a plan that would be much better and we would get 100 percent of the profits."

Andy Williams, a Cather senator, and Mike Leupold, Cather/Pound/Neihardt director of maintenance, devised the plan.

Williams said he marks the cans according to which floor saved them, then tells each floor's treasurer how much money was received for them.
