Ranked teams defeated in intramurals

Thursday's intramural basketball poll promises to have several changes because two teams that were rated last week lost.

The biggest upset was pulled off by the Navy ROTC, which used some sharp shooting to stun No. 2-ranked Law II 62-50. The Navy ROTC team is managed by Joe Elston.

In another upset, the sixth-ranked Pitt Panthers were embarrassed by Blew Bayou 53-48.

Competitions, clinic challenge fitness fans

Tonight is the last night that University of Nebraska-Lincoln students may compete in a basketball-golf competition at the NU Coliseum.

Craig Christensen, the relations director at the Office of Campus Recreation, said the competition will challenge competitors to make as many shots from designated areas as possible. Competition in men's, women's and co-rec divisions will be held from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

No entry fee will be charged for the basketball-golf competition or for an intramural track meet which will be Sunday. The meet begins at 1:45 p.m. at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

In other OCR news, Christensen announced that a squash clinic will be held at 7:15 p.m. every Thursday on the second level at the Lee and Helene Sapp Recreation Center.

Christensen said the two-hour clinic, which be held every Thursday until the conclusion of the semester, is beneficial because squash is a different type of court game similar to racquetball.

UNL students or faculty members interested in registering for the clinic should contact Vicki Highstreet, coordinator of fitness and instructional programming, at the OCR Office. A $3 fee will be charged for each class.

Neumann not worried about matches; wrestlers anxious for championships

By Chuck Green
Senior Reporter

Tonight's wrestling meet against Drake is one Nebraska coach Tim Neumann would like to skip. But fear of getting beat isn't the problem.

With the Big Eight championships a little more than two weeks away, Neumann is just anxious for the dual season to be over.

His fourth-ranked Cornhuskers are, too. But, Neumann said, his team knows what must be done.

"We'll do fine," he said. "But we just have a lot more on our minds than going up against Drake."

Neumann said Nebraska's final two duals of the season -- the last is Saturday against Missouri at the Sports Center -- are not high on the team's list of priorities.

"We will win these last two duals," he said. "But even if we don't, it doesn't really matter."

Nebraska's starting lineup will be altered for tonight's dual. All-Americans Scott Chenoweth and Jason Kelber will not wrestle against Drake.

Jeremie Eckley, a redshirt freshman, will be making his first start at been beaten by some "less than great" teams this season.

"However, because of the lineup, the meet could be interesting," he said. "But I don't see us losing."

Neumann said Drake is a young team, made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores. Most of their starters, he said, were offered partial scholarships or chances to walk on at major Division I programs, but accepted full scholarships with the Bulldogs.

Note:

● The Huskers on Monday began practicing twice a day in preparation for the conference championships, which will be at the Bob Devaney Sports Center on March 11.

Neumann said the team's attitude is positive so far.

"After the second practice on Monday, some of the guys came up to me and said it felt good to be training again," he said.

Monday's practice was "the hardest we've had all season," he said.

No. 2-ranked Missouri last Sunday in Columbia, Mo. He said Oklahoma is close in terms of talent to Missouri and Kansas, which held the top two spots in this week's Associated Press poll.

Tubbs said the Missouri contest was the first in a regular-season ending stretch that is the "toughest in the nation." In addition to playing road games against Missouri and Nebraska, Oklahoma will rematch Missouri and have matchups against Kansas and Oklahoma State before the Big Eight tournament March 9 to March 11.

"I don't think anybody in the nation has a tougher close than our team does," Tubbs said. "We're going to have to be ready."

Tubbs said Oklahoma is going to have to be ready for Nebraska if it is going to continue toward its goal of peaking for the Big Eight and NCAA championships. He said the Sooners have shown progress this season, but need to step things up.

"You know I think we're showing some progress," Tubbs said, "(but) if we're going to do anything we're going to have to do it now."

"I think we have room for improvement."

Tubbs said Oklahoma has received a boost from forward Jackie Jones and guard Skeeter Henry. Henry averages 18.1 points and 5.2 rebounds per contest, while Jones averages 13.8 and 7.

Tubbs said Henry has been a model of consistency.

"Overall, he's been our most consistent performer," Tubbs said. "He's just been playing pretty steady."

Tubbs also praised the efforts of Jones, who scored a career-high 30 points earlier this season against Colorado.

Jones credited his scoring outburst against the Buffaloes to an injury.

"I banged my ankle in the first half," Jones said. "I think that helped me. I wasn't mobile enough to foul anyone."

have anyone to back them up."

Huppert said Nebraska is not intimidated by the Jayhawks.

"Kansas has got the ball in their court," he said. "On paper, they are better than Nebraska."

"But on paper, you can't count us out."

Huppert is basing his optimism on the return of three swimmers who won four Big Eight titles at last year's meet. Kansas returns one.

The Huskers' returning champions are Lynne Braddock in the 50-yard freestyle, Jenell Garcia in the 200 butterfly and Carole Johnson in the 100 and 200 backstrokes. In addition, Nebraska returns Long, who captured the 1988 200 breaststroke title before falling to fourth last season.

Kansas' lone returning Big Eight champion is Gina Brown in the 100 butterfly.

Huppert said Nebraska also will have an advantage entering the meet in terms of experience. The Husker roster has seven freshman, while Kansas' has nine.

Huppert said the younger swimmers have no idea what they're getting into.

"Our freshmen don't have a grasp of what's happening," he said. "There's going to be 1,000 people in the stands hooping and hollering."

"It's different from any meet they've competed in."

Promotional give-away opens simulcast action

From Staff Reports

Patrons who take in the simulcasting action at Lincoln's State Fair Park may win more than the bet they wagered on a horse race.

As part of a new promotion this season, State Fair Park officials announced they will be giving away $100 to a patron who attends the simulcasting action. Simulcasting is a process which allows patrons to view and wager on racing by watching through a television hookup.

The races will be simulcast from Grand Island's Fonner Park, which opens its season at 2 p.m. Thursday. Racing from Fonner will begin at 2 p.m. on Friday, and at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

State Fair Park will simulcast the action on all four days.

State Fair Park officials also announced that they will have several other promotions in conjunction with their simulcasting, including free admission and a special section of the clubhouse which will be reserved for non-smokers. A banquet room for large parties of individuals also is available if advanced reservations are made.
