Bowlers receive All-America honors

Two members of the Nebraska men's and women's bowling teams were awarded second-team All-America honors Monday. Kim Berke, a sophomore business major from Beatrice, and Paul Fleming, a junior general studies major from Peculiar, Mo., were selected for the team by the National Collegiate Bowling Coaches' Association. Berke also was named an academic All-America selection.

Crew team records first, third places

The Nebraska crew team recorded first- and third-place finishes at the President's Regatta last weekend in Topeka, Kan.

Nebraska's Ron Vokoun and Dave Schmidt won the men's varsity pair competition over a 400-meter course, while the Cornhuskers' mixed-eight squad entry finished third over the same distance. The members of the mixed-eight squad included Vokoun, Schmidt, Teresa Kastl, Jackie Sutsin, Amy Green, Eric Dove, Vicki Schormaker, Jon Paladino and steerer Eric Dunning.

Rodgers faces competition for I-back

Terry Rodgers says he is the type of person who backs down from nothing. And after the junior I-back battled back from a career-threatening knee injury to play in six games for Nebraska last season, he proved he was a competitor.

But Rodgers' biggest challenge may be getting playing time during his senior year.

Rodgers entered spring practice second on Nebraska's depth chart at I-back, behind sophomore Leodis Flowers. With the addition of high school standouts Derek Brown and Calvin Jones to the team this fall, the position became loaded with talent.

"I love the competition," Rodgers said. "The more guys I got going against me, the better I perform."

Rodgers said his knee still is not fully recuperated from the injury which made him sit out most of his sophomore season. Last season he returned to action, gaining 144 yards on 34 attempts.

"I'm still not back to 100 percent," Rodgers said. "It gets frustrating not being able to go as fast or as hard as you know you can."

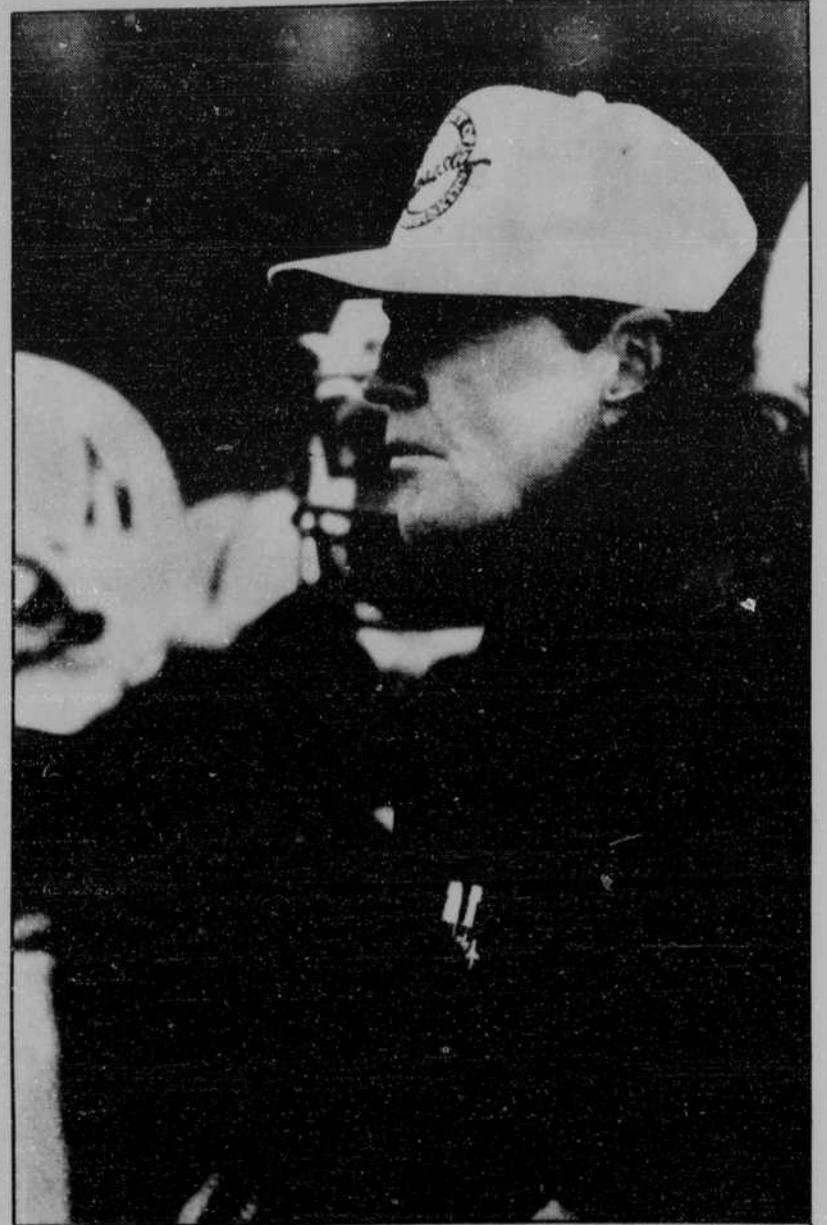

Rodgers said he has put the injury behind him and is focusing on the fall campaign.

"It's in the past now. Those are the things that happen in the game. It's a violent sport, and sometimes there are violent consequences," Rodgers said.

Injuries haven't been Rodgers' only problem since coming to Nebraska. At 5 feet 7 inches and 170 pounds, Rodgers' small stature has been another obstacle for him to overcome.

"Terry lost some weight during his rehabilitation and that set him back even more, but he's had a great attitude considering everything he's been through," said head football coach Tom Osborne.

Rodgers also has had to deal with some off-field distractions. His father Johnny, a 1972 Heisman Trophy winner for Nebraska, was involved in a recruiting scandal concerning Houston quarterback Andre Ware.

Head football coach Tom Osborne eyes his players Monday as they practice in light rain and wind.

"My dad's a grown man," Rodgers said. "Sure, I'm concerned about him and some of the bad things that have happened, but I can't tell him what to do and what not to do."

In light of all his problems, would Rodgers consider himself unlucky?

"I'd say that there's been things that have happened to me that lots of other athletes don't have to go through," Rodgers said. "But if I sit back and think about what could've been, I'll lose all that I've worked so hard for."
