is that it is more economical than the microwave system. Prior to Feb. 1, NETV paid American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for use of their microwaves. AT&T was increasing its rates, Stephens said, so it was clear that some other alternative was needed.

The nine transmitter stations were equipped with satellite dishes to receive the signal from the satellite, Spacenet II. The cost of the hardware, dishes and rental of the satellite space for the 1990 fiscal year was $1.119 million, Stephens said.

Multiple Channels are possible using the satellite, Stephens said. Several programs can be linked up to the transponder at once.

NEB*SAT also has made it possible to have a statewide radio signal. Steve York, an announcer for Nebraska Public Radio Network, said prior to NEB*SAT, the signal only could be received by listeners who were not far outside of Lincoln.

NEB*SAT allows expansion in a variety of directions. The new network will enhance educational access, provide in-service professional and on-site employee training and help Nebraska's colleges and universities bring instruction to all parts of the state.

NEB*SAT was developed by the Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Coordinating and Planning Group.

Tuck

Tuck's personal philosophy on photography involves a lot of "hands-on" experience, as well as plenty of imagination. His travels to Africa, Japan, Egypt, China and Europe have given him the experience. And he also taught a photography class to high school students at Oxford University.

"As a photographer, you have to get inside of people's mind, you have to pull out the salient elements. Unless you're alert and have a vision, you don't see it at all," he said.

Tuck sees writing in the same light as photography.

"You have to let writing consume you," he said. "Treat every story as if you're writing your last and constantly try to improve."

"If you rest on your laurels, you're as good as dead."

You're astute enough to discuss the philosophical ramifications of Victor Frankl's "Existential Vacuum."

And you're still smoking?
