

Author portrays Soviet character

By Kara Wells
Staff Reporter

Dick Kimbrough likes to tell stories.

A master storyteller, Kimbrough will entertain avid listeners this weekend at Summertime Nebraska in the Haymarket.

Kimbrough says he has a variety of stories he tells, ranging from the assassination of Abraham Lincoln to a tale about Grover Cleveland Alexander, a famous Nebraska baseball player.

But Kimbrough says he is best known for his character Dr. Viktor Ustinov, a Soviet deputy minister of Economics.

With his Soviet character, Kimbrough says, he discusses similarities between the Soviet Union and the United States.

"I get students to think about the economic and the free enterprise system," he said.

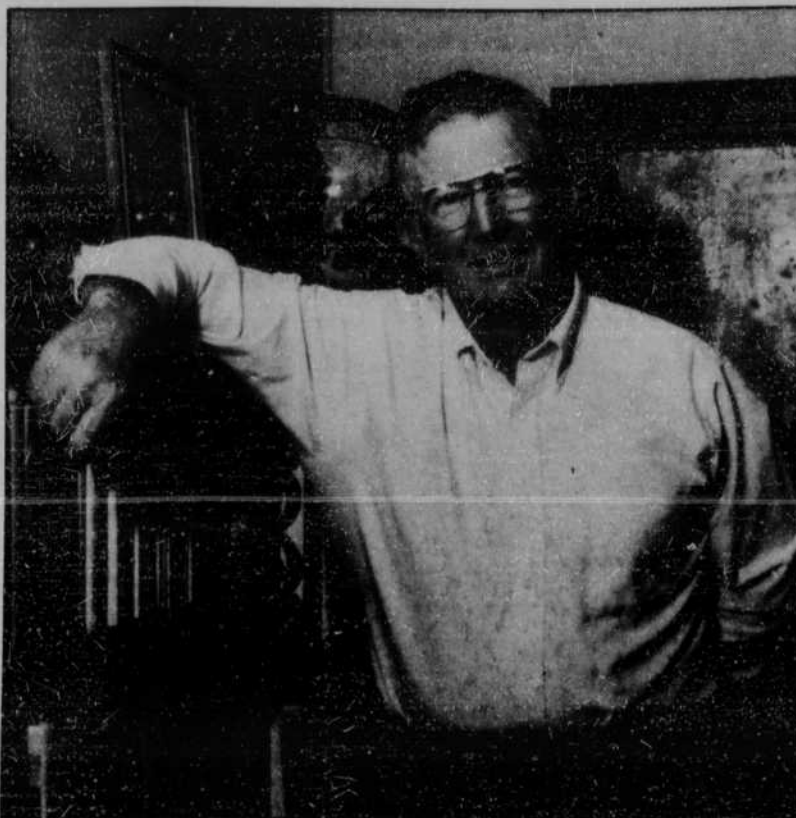

As a former teacher, Kimbrough has taken his talent for storytelling and formed a company that specializes in curriculum enrichment programs for elementary and high school students.

For his story ideas, Kimbrough says he draws on stories he has published in five books. Kimbrough also had a nationally syndicated column carried in approximately 200 newspapers nationwide.

Kimbrough also is involved with the University of Nebraska Center for Entrepreneurship, for which he is presenting a series on starting businesses, and he is a performer with the Nebraska Arts Council.

Kimbrough is scheduled for performances on Saturday at 6 and 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:15 and 5:15 p.m.
