ment spending on the same ballot. By God, I have to live within my paycheck every month and it's about time the government was forced to, as well," Dan said. Little pockets of spit were building in the corners of his mouth.

The logic of this 2 percent lid escaped me so I pressed for more answers.

cent lid cut money to the university?" I asked. "Damn right it will, and that's the way it should be. You whiny, pampered college kids have been getting too much for too long. I dropped out of school in the eighth grade and went to work on my dad's farm and I was happy to do it. You little weasels oughta quit mooching off of the gov-ernment and get a real job." My drive to be a man was slowly fodiac fading.

"But the university conducts research that's vital to the state and generates a lot of attention and investment for Nebraska," I offered.

"I'll tell you what generates a lot "But Uncle Dan, won't a 2 per- of money for the university and that's the football team. As far as I'm concerned, that's the only worthwhile part of the university.

I changed tactics.

"Uncle Dan, I'm no economist, but it seems odd to me to put a 2 percent lid on government spending increases when inflation goes up about with your facts. Facts are the enemy of right-thinking men. And as I hear it, there must be a lot of right-thinking men in this state because polls indicate the 2 percent lid will pass easily.

"I don't think my college peers will vote for it," I said.

"Yeah, it probably wouldn't pass if they voted but we all know college kids are the worst voters of them all. Truth be told, the university is sunk if this bill passes and there ain't a damn thing you apathetic college weenies can do."

Another momentary shock as I responded to Dan's use of the four-syllable word, "apathetic."

Still, I pressed on.

'Uncle Dan, if I may be so bold as to have an unmale position on this issue, I think the 2 percent lid is a knee-jerk reaction from backward, thick-skulled zeros like you who will support any ill-conceived piece of legislation that protects your narrowminded interests. This bill would kans who truly want what's best for the state will vote against it. I'm quite convinced that I have no desire to be a man in your book and so will now go help my mom with the dishes.'

Uncle Dan looked at me vacantly for a few moments and then spoke. "What's that word mean . . . conceived?"

"Go to Love Library and look it up while you still can," I said.

Then, feeling far too impressed with myself, I went to the kitchen and finished the dishes for my mom.
