Huskers have a strong chance to win the NCAA volleyball championship Dec. 15, in College Park, Md.

"Of course, anything can happen on a given night, but I certainly think they deserve to be considered as a favorite for the championship," she said.

Junior Tea Nieminen leads Brigham Young offensively. Nieminen leads the team in kills, averaging five a game. Michaelis said Nieminen plays for the Finnish national team in the off-season.

Other Brigham Young players to watch include senior Marinda Ashman and freshman Tumua Matu'u, Michaelis said.

Matu'u is averaging just over three kills and three digs a game. Ashman's numbers include about four kills a game and she is averaging 1.17 blocks a game.

Michaelis is in her 29th year at Brigham Young, arriving in 1969. Her career record of 570-154-5 puts her as the fourth winningest volleyball coach in the nation.

Other teams visiting the NU Coliseum this weekend include Wisconsin and North Carolina.

"Fran is young and you will normally expect a senior to accomplish what she's accomplished so far in her young career," he said. "I feel cross country has improved Fran as a student and it has also matured her."

Last season, tenBensel finished 10th at the Big Eight meet and was the fourth Husker to place as Nebraska won the Big Eight title. She also finished 13th at the district meet, qualifying for nationals where she placed 70th, the fifth Husker runner to place.

"College running has been a big adjustment for me to make because it involves more mental than physical training," tenBensel said. "But once I learned how to race in college, I got better experienced and used to the training involved."

Both the women's and men's cross country teams are preparing for their first major meet of the season -- the Mountain West Invitational Saturday in Missoula, Mont. But the women's team will have to compete without tenBensel, who will be attending her sister's wedding.

"I'm disappointed," she said. "I'm going to miss the first big meet of the season, but my family is very important to me. I think out team will do well with all the good competition there, and I wish them the best of luck."

Fran tenBensel never ran cross country until arriving at UNL. The redshirt sophomore won the first two meets of this season.

Tight end may miss Oregon State game

From Staff Reports

Injuries aren't likely to keep any Cornhuskers off the field Saturday, but tight end William Washington missed Wednesday's practice, and may miss Saturday's Oregon State game due to a death in the family, Coach Tom Osborne said.

If Washington is absent from Saturday's matchup, Daryl Leise and Johnny Mitchell will share most of the playing time with starter Chris Garrett.
