Wind blows Huskers inside

From Staff Reports

The Nebraska football team worked out in full pads Wednesday in Cook Pavilion.

Coach Tom Osborne said the team moved inside to avoid high wind that would have made passing difficult.

"It wasn't so much that it was cold," he said, "it was just the wind." Practice in preparation for Saturday's game has been "reasonably good," Osborne said, while the team's injury situation remains fair.

Tight end William Washington, hampered by a sprained ankle, again suited up but did very little, Osborne said. Mike Vedral will be the No. 3 tight end behind Daryl Leise and Johnny Mitchell against Oklahoma

Join an Interesting Spring-Semester Research Project. Earn Money, Get a Free One Credit Course and Learn About your Physical and Psychological Makeup

In this project you will be treated as a partner, fully informed from the beginning.

WHO:

We need healthy men and women under 30, sophomores, juniors, and seniors, who neither exercise regularly, nor use tobacco, especially those who are out of shape but wish they weren't. Couch potatoes and those who feel intolerant of stress should apply. Overweight is ok. Joining with a similar partner is a plus but not necessary.

BENEFITS:

At $5 per hour you earn $140 for lab activities that will range from the relaxing to the difficult, including psychological and physical tests. You will get thorough feedback from these tests. You can also earn up to $50 more in competitive prizes. Additionally, we will repay your tuition costs when you complete the hour course of Stress Tolerance Techniques or Aerobic Conditioning. Courses will meet regularly, mid to late afternoons, scheduled at times convenient to our participants.

REQUIREMENTS: You agree to be randomly assigned to either course and provide some private urine samples for hormonal analyses. Your schedule must allow you to our lab most afternoons and evenings for two weeks next semester, beginning at either 2:00 or 3:30 p.m.

For more information about this research, drop a note with your name and address through campus mail to: Jennifer Sloan or Dick Dienstbier -- 209 Burnett 0308
