

McEnroe

exchanged high-fives and McEnroe collapsed into his chair, tears streaming down his cheeks.

This is McEnroe's second Grand Slam singles appearance, after winning his only Slam title in men's doubles at the French Open in 1989. His oldest brother, John, also reached the semifinals in his second Grand Slam singles outing, Wimbledon in 1977, after winning the French Open mixed doubles with Mary Carillo a month earlier.

John McEnroe, who was defaulted for arguing line calls at last year's Australian Open, skipped this year's tournament with injuries.

The match, with fewer than 2,000 people in the 15,000-seat stadium by the end, was free of any John McEnroe-style outbursts or arguments. Patrick did get mad once, at a group of Italians whose pro-Caratti cheers grew louder and louder as McEnroe's ordeal lengthened.

"How about shutting up for once?" he shouted. That was in the middle of winning the first game of the final set, and it was almost like John getting fired up. He took a 3-0 lead and broke again for 5-1 as Caratti double faulted.

Caratti said he was injured, too, starting with a slight thigh strain that got worse the longer he played and effected his net play.

"When he took three minutes (injury timeout), I wanted to take three minutes, too," Caratti said. "But I didn't want to let McEnroe know about my injury."

McEnroe will be the decided underdog in the men's final four Friday. He'll play second-seeded Boris Becker, who beat 10th-seeded Guy Forget 6-2, 7-6, 6-3.

The other semifinal has top-seeded Stefan Edberg against two-time defending champion Ivan Lendl. Edberg beat Jamie Yzaga 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, before Lendl defeated Goran Prpic 6-0, 7-6, 7-6.

Lendl's victory over the unseeded Prpic was tough.

After blowing through the first set, losing just two points on his serve, Lendl found that Prpic could play. With Lendl serving for the set, Prpic broke for 5-5 on a Lendl forehand long. In the tiebreak, Lendl reasserted himself, winning the last five points and closing at 7-1 on a backhand volley.

Lendl dominated the tiebreak, winning the last six points for 7-2.

Buffalo's no-huddle is unique in that Kelly calls the plays — the only NFL quarterback who does. He almost always lines up in the shotgun, from which he can either pass or hand off, primarily to Thurman Thomas.

"Even if we're in the shotgun, the defense doesn't know if we're going to run or pass," center Kent Hull said. "It gives the offensive line a break because they (the opposition) can't tell what you're going to do."

This week, however, it goes against the league's stingiest defense, one that allowed only 211 points in 16 regular-season games, a little more than double what the Bills scored in two playoff games.

Parcells isn't concerned with the no-huddle as much as he's concerned with the Buffalo players, particularly the ones at the skill positions who wreaked so much havoc on the Dolphins and Raiders.

"The no-huddle — the entity in itself — isn't the problem," he said. "The problem is Jim Kelly, Andre Reed, Thurman Thomas and James Lofton. There are a lot of teams that could employ the no-huddle offense and not be too successful doing it."
