"To see a person stand up at crunch time like she did, that takes a lot of guts," Huppert said. "Even though her times weren't as fast as a year ago, she comes back this year to totally dominate. It absolutely amazes me."

Butcher said she was surprised at her honor.

"I was happy at being awarded the MVP again and I was happy we won," she said.

Huppert said many of his swimmers swam their fastest times of the season, and some had lifetime bests.

Tennis team cleans house

The Nebraska men's tennis team swept through Creighton and Wichita State this weekend with 9-0 triumphs.

Both duals took place within 24 hours, the best preparation for conference competition according to coach Kerry McDermott.

"These wins helped build up our character and discipline," McDermott said. "These matches will really help us when the Big Eight comes around."

After defeating the Bluejays Friday night, the true test for Nebraska was to come back 10 hours later and play a competitive Wichita State squad, McDermott said.

The Huskers swept by the Shockers, though many of the Nebraska players claimed fatigue got to them.

"I couldn't get fired up for Wichita State," said No. 6 singles player Joey Salerno, who didn't lose a set over the weekend in singles or at No. 2 doubles with Anthony Kotarac. "After getting just four hours of sleep, fatigue was definitely a factor."

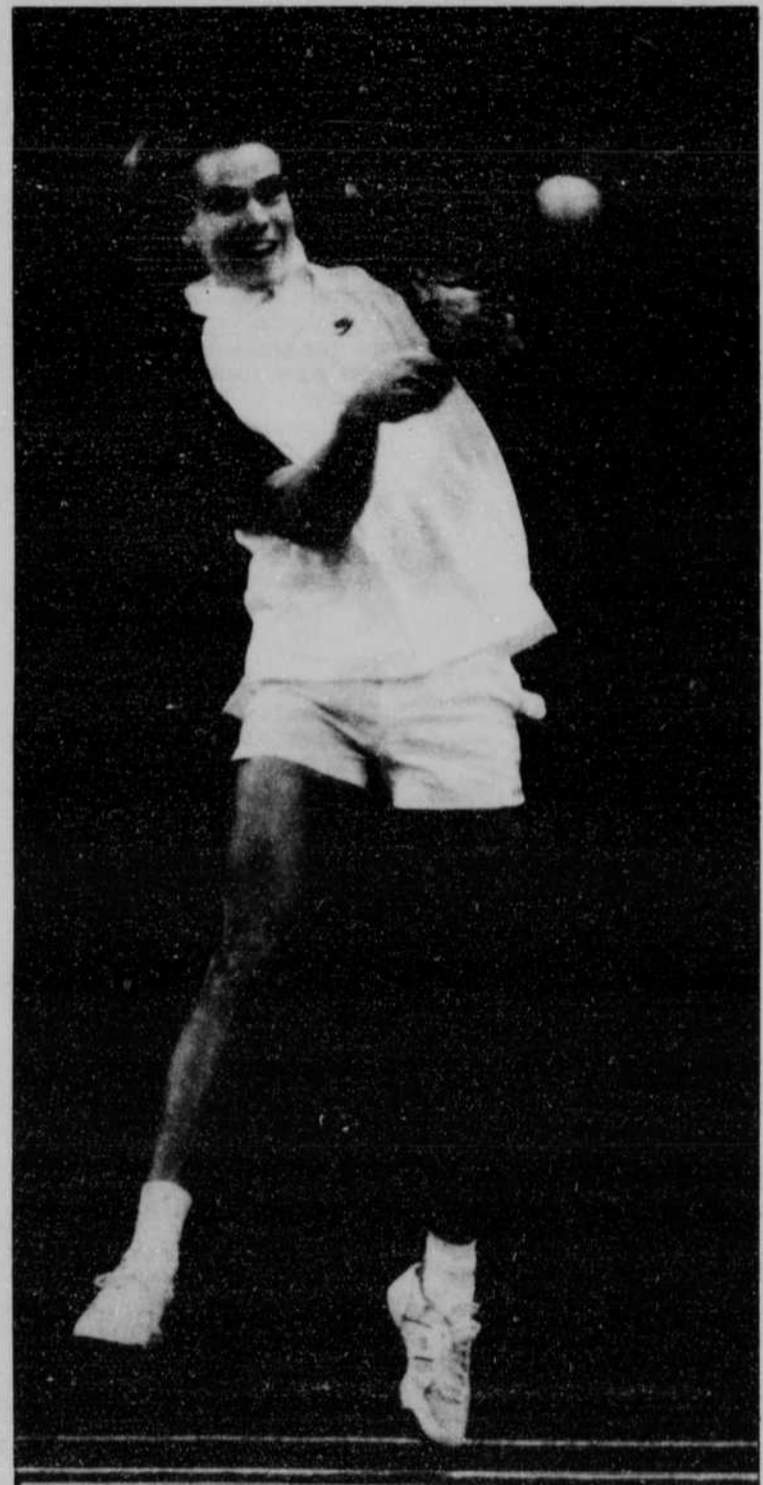

No. 1 singles and doubles player Matthias Mueller, who is ranked 26th nationally, didn't defeat his competition as easily. Mueller had to fight back to defeat Darren Frlan of Wichita State 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"I didn't start playing well until the middle of the second set," Mueller said. "After he hooked me on a shot, I got motivated and ready to play."

Mueller also blamed the Bob Devaney Sports Center's courts for his problems.

"These are the worst facilities I've ever seen," said Mueller, who also had troubles at No. 1 doubles with Scott Randolph, edging their Shocker counterparts 4-6, 7-6, 7-5. "I'm very happy that Big Eight play is outdoors, and not here."

Nebraska will travel to Iowa City, Iowa, this weekend to battle Iowa and Gustavus Adolphus, and will not compete at home again until April 13.
