eyed, gel-headed, bad suit-wearing, commie-loving, pimply-faced, gross-looking, worthless, gruesome, snivelling, bad-breathed, putrid, grumpy, low-down, stinky snake in the grass who has no clue how to run a parking meter, much less a university. If he is less, he's nothing. But he's more, had I more names for badness.

Whew! Was that mean enough. Wait, here's more.

Coach Tom Osborne is so shallow and so miserable over his team's crappy season that he loves to slug back Jack Daniels and Valium while listening to Smith's songs over and over. He hates the new coaching wonder Danny Nee so much that he keeps a stuffed doll of the basketball chief in his Memorial Stadium office and throws darts at it in between shots of Absolut.

And Danny Nee? Don't even get me started on Danny Nee. Did you know that he likes to dress up like Cher and sing "If I could Turn Back Time" in front of his mirror at home? I swear on a Bible.

And Governor Ben Nelson? Few people know that he was abandoned at birth by his parents because he was so damn ugly. They pierced his feet with a leather thong and left him to die of exposure high on Chimney Rock.

The future governor was found by a pack of wolves and was raised by them to adulthood. When he was 21, he was found roaming the sandhills with his wolf family. Authorities brought him home, retrained him to be a human and nominated him for governor. The sad thing is, he has not been able to fully rescind his lupine past and still feasts on wild animals. In fact, at least once a month, an entire deer is thrown into his office. He can clean the carcass down to the bone with just his teeth inside 20 minutes.

And he's still ugly. Phil Gosch, ASUN president, is a big weenie. Interim Chancellor Jack Goebel is a pig. The Lied Center still sucks. Love Library is still a hunk of architectural dung. The parking police, both at UNL and in the city, are moronic idiots who are lucky to have the jobs they have because Burger King isn't hiring. UNL city campus is the ugliest campus in the world. All the red, god-awful art structures in the world won't change that. And what the hell is the Willa Cather Garden? It's grass! It's not a garden! This university sucks, and all the people here suck. I hate this place. I can't wait to leave.

There, Ken, I think we all feel better now.

with its dynamic ups and downs. This, coupled with Morrissey's unique vocal style and breathy voice, makes for a great album.

This pairing makes comparisons to Morrissey's former group, the Smiths, unavoidable. Though they are very similar, this is not a problem. So much of the Smiths was Morrissey that this similarity seems more of a continuation of his work, rather than a cheap way out of producing something new.

Morrissey has managed to give us a pleasing collection of well-crafted work with the eclectic style and whimsy that is all his own. "Kill Uncle" gets high marks for its wit and the appreciable musical talent evident therein.

heroine, Cassandra (Lori Singer). There he learns that she just happens to have one of the pages of a long-lost book of witchery. If he can find the other two pages, he will possess the power to rule the world.

Redferne will have none of that and vigorously pursues the warlock in order to prevent him from finding the other missing pages. Cassandra decides to come with him because that nasty warlock has cast an aging spell on her and she is now 80 years old.

After finding the second page at a Mennonite farm (you figure it out), the warlock learns that the last page is in a cemetery in Boston. Redferne and Cassandra are with him every step of the way and they head for a big showdown in the graveyard.

While "Warlock" is a bad movie, it does have a sense of humor about itself. There are some genuinely funny moments that seem to have been planned by the movie's makers.

Sadly, most of the the movie's humorous moments are unintentional.

Too many laughs are generated by the stupefyingly idiotic plot.

Some of the biggest belly laughs come from the embarrassingly crummy special effects. Most notable is the flying effect used for the warlock. It is difficult to describe just how amateurish this effect is, but it is likely that most high school film classes could do better.

"Warlock," the tale of Satan's son, is a bad flick. Now we can only pray that Satan doesn't have a daughter too.

"Warlock" is playing at the Plaza Four Theaters, 201 N. 12th St.

Nebraska 'rhythmic' Brass to perform

From Staff Reports

The Nebraska Brass's focus on rhythm will continue Wednesday and Thursday with its fifth of six concerts in its 1990-91 concert season.

The concerts, titled "Rhythmic Brass," feature works for brass percussion. Works ranging from renaissance dance music to rock 'n' roll will be performed. Joining the group on a variety of percussion instruments will be John Scofield. Scofield is a member of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra and also teaches music in the Lincoln Public Schools.

Concert selections include "To Anacreon in Heaven" by John Stafford Smith, "Quintet" by Malcolm Arnold, "Early One Morning" transcribed by Scott Anderson, "Elizabethan Dance Suite" by Anthony Holborne and "Rondeau" by Jean Joseph Mouret.

Members of the group include Dean Haist, trumpet and business manager; Michael Anderson, trumpet; Tim Anderson, french horn; Scott Anderson, trombone and John Thomason, tuba.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Kountze Memorial Lutheran Church in Omaha, 2650 Farnam St., and at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at St. Paul United Methodist Church in Lincoln, 1144 M St.

Individual tickets are available at the door. General admission is $7; senior citizens are $5 and students $3.
