Mod Squad takes Primetime

By Brian Busenbark
 Staff Reporter

With a nail-biting finish fit for prime time television, The Mod Squad beat Primetime 40-39 to win the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Independent C Intramural League basketball tournament Sunday night. Cameron Everitt's 22-foot jumper with 13 seconds remaining gave The Mod Squad the victory, capping a wild second half that saw Primetime erase a 10-point deficit to take a five-point lead late in the game.

"It was pure luck," Everitt said of his game-winning shot, "I just knew that we needed a shot quick so I took it."

The Mod Squad held a 10-point halftime lead despite a turnover-plagued first half in which neither team could hit from the field. The two teams combined for only 10 first-half field goals, seven of them by The Mod Squad.

In the second half, however, Primetime began to chip away at the Squad's lead with an assault of three-point field goals. Primetime's Troy Bartling scored all 12 of his points on second half three-pointers, and Andy Hahn nailed two treys to give Primetime a five-point lead with 2:45 left in the game.

With 28 seconds left and Primetime holding a 38-37 lead, Primetime's Mark Svoboda made one of two free throws to set up Everitt's game winner.

Everitt led The Mod Squad, which finished the season 10-0, with 17 points. Andy Hahn scored 13 for Primetime, 9-2.

Farmhouse beats Phi Delta Theta

In the Fraternity 'C' Final, Farmhouse C2 "kept its cool" to defeat Phi Delta Theta 62-50.

From the opening tip, the game was physical and two second-half technical fouls on the Phi Deltas were instrumental in stopping comebacks that might have made the game closer.

"I always try personally to keep my cool out there," Farmhouse's David Swan said, "I consider it one of my strengths."

Farmhouse C2, 9-0, jumped to a 35-20 halftime lead using an attacking man-to-man defense and a post-up offense.

"All year we've looked for a mismatch and tried to exploit it, and tonight I guess it was on me," Swan said.

Swan scored 17 of his game-high 21 points in the first half.

In the second half, the Phi Deltas switched to a packed-in zone to concentrate on Swan, which left Lee Thurber open on the outside. Thurber finished with 19 points, 11 in the second half.

The Phi Deltas countered with an up-tempo offense and cut the deficit to seven points when flaring tempers resulted in a technical foul, and the swing in momentum helped Farmhouse extend its lead to 15 points.

Later, with 4:45 remaining in the game, Phi Delta Theta was assessed another technical foul, this time stopping a run that had brought the Phi Deltas to within five points.

Swan converted both free throws, Farmhouse scored on the ensuing possession and the Phi Deltas weren't able to get any closer.

Ironically, despite getting help from the two Phi Delta technicals, Farmhouse was slapped with a technical foul before the game began, for hanging on the rim during warm-ups.

Chad Krumbach led Phi Delta Theta, 8-1, with 13 points.
