

Crack Shot/Daily Half-Asskin

Big fuckin' trucks duke it out at the Laid Center. Nobody got dirty.

Bumbly gets Laid to draw monster trucks

By Anybody But Jim Hanna
Staff Something-or-other

Faced with a bigger than reported budget shortfall and rising discontent within the less sophisticated ranks of the Lincoln populace, The Laid Center for Performing Farts has announced a major overhaul of the 1991-92 season.

Laid director Bobby Bumbly proudly unveiled a new season designed to generate more dollars and provide entertainment options for less artsy consumers. Among the new events scheduled for next season are two appearances by The World Wrestling Federation, the annual Toughshit Contest and a tractor pull.

"As you can imagine, we're beyond ecstatic to have these new events on our season," Bumbly said.

Laid planners realized they were not catering to enough sectors of the population to see real profits. After several weeks of planning, the selection team decided it was time to re-

— 66 —

Yeah, yeah, it's really great to see some pussy tenor from Europe sing his sissy little operas or to have a bunch of fat-thighed dancers from the Ruskie ballet twitter across the stage. But give me 'Hacksaw' Jim Duggan whacking Hulk Hogan with a 2 X 4 anyday. That's art, man.

Bumbly
Laid director

move some of the more high-brow events from the calendar.

"Yeah, yeah, it's really great to see some pussy tenor from Europe sing his sissy little operas or to have a bunch of fat-thighed dancers from the Ruskie ballet twitter across the stage. But give me 'Hacksaw' Jim Duggan whacking Hulk Hogan with a 2 X 4 anyday. That's art, man," Bumbly said.

The major highlight of the new season will be the October presentation of the Butt-Kickin' Monster Truck/Demolition Derby Extravaganza.

On October 13, the baddest monster trucks in North America will duke it out in a winner-take-all demolition derby on the Laid Center stage.

"I can't tell you how stoked I am that those babies are gonna go at it on my stage. When those big fuckin' engines get to blatin' and they start creamin' the hell out of one another, I just get all riled. My blood pumps and my testosterone levels soar and I picture myself behind the wheel of one of those sweet beasts. . . god, I just go nuts," Bumbly said, as a small bulge grew in his pants.

When asked what his favorite part of the monster truck competition was, Bumbly nearly lost his mind.

"When those big studs really open it up and those engines start firing. VVVVRRRRROOOOOOOOM!!! HUMMMM - HUMMMM!!! VVVVRRRRROOOOOOOOMMM!!!! EEEEEERRRRRRR! LOOK OUT! GOD, I JUST CAN'T FUCKING STAND IT!" Bumbly said before convulsing slightly at the hips and excusing himself.

Bumbly returned shortly with a protracted grin on his face.

"Now, as I was saying, we are quite excited about this year's season. We have still kept some of the sissy stuff like plays and symphonies but we think everyone will agree that our new stuff can kick Loveshak Perlman's ass any day. We hope it sells well."

For tickets to the artsy, boring shows, call the Laid Box office. For convenience, a hotline has been set up to take orders for the new macho series. Dial 1-800-GET-TUFF.