BUILDING: So many things go wrong with student paperwork in the Administration Building that there must be a full-time employee whose only job is to grab important papers and stick them underneath the office coffee-maker. I'd be the person that grabs your financial aid application and files it in the music library.

ALLEY URINATION MONITOR: We all know how busy the police are when the bars close. They can't be at the Kwik Shop drinking coffee AND body else will, either!" Maybe for outside the bars ticketing drunks. I'd like to patrol the alleys downtown some red food coloring before the

for those career criminals who dare to soil the grungy bricks behind a dumpster with their liquid emissions.

VOMITER: This would be a great job. Picture this: You're a struggling restaurant who is losing customers to a competitor. You hire me to go eat a hearty meal at your opponent's establishment. Then, as I'm leaving, I begin to complain of nausea and sharp abdominal pains. Then I step onto the crowded street in front of you enemy's restaurant and puke my guts out. "Oh, yuck," I'll cry out. "The never eat here again and I hope no-body else will, either!" Maybe for good measure, I'll have swallowed from 1 to 2 a.m., writing up citations meal so my intestinal emission appears laced with blood. This ought to be disgusting enough to ruin your competitor's business.

Basically, I'll just take any job that pays a whole bunch of money for very little work. If any of the above jobs are open and meet those standards, I'd appreciate it if the employers would call me and at least let me fill out an application.

If you have any doubts about my employability or just how capable I might be, just keep this one thing in mind. My most recent job involved getting paid to write mindless crap bangers Ball is full of Generic metal. Generic lyrics are nothing new in any genre of music, nor are generic sounds. But add in generic ideas and even generic appearances, and generic becomes Generic.

With the combination of the above influences and a sound that might once have been called metal, Generic metal results.

Take "3-D," the new release from Wrathchild America. Here is a collection of straightforward metal, sometimes speedish and sometimes slower, with lots of hair and no Satanic lyrics. There is nothing wrong with this release; in fact, it is quite good, especially during the more aggressive moments of songs like "Desert Grins"

and "Surrounded by Idiots."
The title song, "3-D Man," is also quite good in its call for open-mindedness and flexibility in living.

But there is little left of any import after these few songs. More songs are there, but there is nothing special about them, nothing which remains with the listener afterward.

The sounds are familiar and adequate, but little more. The same can be said for the band's lyrics, and the band's appearance. And its approach. In short, "3-D" typifies everything Generic in metal.

And what response can there be to Generic metal, but a Generic review?
