

Shakespeare folio to tour state

Other Love books also will make trip

By Ronda Vlasin

William Shakespeare's 368-year-old First Folio, donated to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln last February, is going on tour.

The folio will be taken to Alliance, Scottsbluff, Ogallala and North Platte Oct. 28-31, said Kent Hendrickson, dean of UNL libraries.

"Later we might make other trips to other cities, but this is what is scheduled for right now," he said.

There are no plans to take the folio out of Nebraska, he said.

The folio, valued at $300,000, contains 36 of Shakespeare's 37 plays. Seventeen of the 36 plays appear in print for the first time in the folio, which was published in 1623.

It is the only existing original folio between the Mississippi River and the West Coast, Hendrickson said, and was donated by Sidney Johnson of Lincoln in memory of her father.

"It is such an important equity of the library and it belongs to the entire state," he said. "Unfortunately a large bunch of people will never have the chance to see it. We'd like to make sure that they get that chance."

Hendrickson and Robert Knoll, a UNL English professor emeritus, will take the folio on tour and will meet with three or four community groups, social organizations, high schools and public libraries.

Along with the Shakespeare folio, a first edition book by Willa Cather, a first edition book by Maria Sandoz and a centennial edition of Mark Twain's book "Huckleberry Finn" will go on tour, Hendrickson said.

Since the folio has been part of the library's permanent collection, he said, "it has received a lot of interest."

It is still considered the most valuable gift to the library, he said.
