

Daily Nebraskan

TODAY'S WEATHER

53/32

Today, fog clearing in the morning, then mostly sunny. Tonight, fair. Wednesday, mostly sunny, high in the 60s.

November 12, 1991

University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Vol. 91 No. 56

Official says audit bill not answer

By Jeremy Fitzpatrick
Senior Reporter

Although UNL is already in compliance with legislation in Congress that would require athletic departments to perform and make public a yearly audit, a UNL athletic official said he does not support the proposed law.

The legislation, offered by Rep. Paul Henry, R-Mich., is part of the Higher Education amendments of 1992.

It would amend House Resolution 3553 to require universities that offer athletic scholarships to conduct an annual audit of the total revenues and expenditures of their athletic departments and make that information available to anyone who requested it.

Al Papik, assistant athletic director for administrative services, admitted that the public image of college athletics is not good but said he did not think more federal legislation

See AUDIT on 6

Proposal would link institutions

School would instruct education administrators

By Sarah Scalet
Staff Reporter

A proposal to establish a professional school in Nebraska to train public education administrators is in its early stages, UNL officials said.

Ward Sybouts, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln educational administration professor, said the proposal, initiated by the UNL Department of Educational Administration, would unite five Nebraska post-secondary institutions into one statewide program. This program would help students attain higher levels of specialization, he said.

However, the school would not be located at one central location. Instead, Sybouts said, the proposal would create one school with staff statewide.

Sybouts said he believes the program would be the only one of its kind in the education field nationwide although similar programs exist in medicine, dentistry and law.

See EDUCATION on 3

Dietitians say students eat healthier

Cereal Usage in UNL Residence Halls

Number of cases of different cereals used during the 1990-91 school year.

Kelloggs Corn Flakes	27
General Mills Wheaties	27
Kelloggs Rice Crispies	30
Kelloggs Frosted Mini Wheats	99
Quaker Captain Crunch	107
Kelloggs Cracklin' Oat Bran	127
Kelloggs Fruit Loops	143
General Mills Lucky Chams	152

ABEL HALL CAFETERIA

Scott Maurer/DN

Residence hall meals called more nutritious

By Yvonne A. Sabatka
Staff Reporter
and Stacey McKenzie
Senior Editor

The UNL residence halls used to serve about 600 portions of Turkey Americana—a deep-fat fried turkey and cheese combination—during one meal.

But Turkey Americana isn't as popular with students as it used to be, said Anne Dumper, administrative dietitian for the Office of University Housing at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Students are becoming more health-conscious in their diets, she said, and are substituting fried foods high in fat, such as Turkey Americana, with baked chicken or fish.

"Now we serve about 250 or 300 portions of the turkey dish in one meal, Dumper said.

Students' tastes in general have changed, she said.

"We don't serve as many casserole-type items," she said. "People are more into sandwiches and things that are quick and easy."

Kathleen Lehr, a registered dietitian and nutritionist at the University Health Center, said students are trying to eat healthier than in the past.

See NUTRITION on 6

William Lauer/DN

Keeping the light burning

Mike Madsen (left), cadet captain in the Air Force ROTC, and Pat Wells, cadet major in the AFROTC, attend the POW-MIA candlelight vigil in the Military and Naval Science Building on Monday. The 24-hour vigil was sponsored by the Arnold Air Society. ROTC members shared two-hour shifts starting at midnight Monday in honor of prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action, possibly still held in Vietnam.

Playboy interviews Big Eight women

By Wendy Navratil
Senior Reporter

A Playboy magazine photographer said only the blustery season, not women's liberation, might deter interested UNL women from applying to pose for Playboy.

"We get more calls during a warmer time of year," said David Chan, a Playboy photographer. "A lot of people think that they can't come up when their skin looks white—they don't know what a camera can do for them."

Chan and two other Playboy representatives began interviewing University of Nebraska-Lincoln women Monday for a spot in a Playboy pictorial on women of the Big Eight. They will be interviewing until Wednesday.

Out of about 100 UNL women they anticipate interviewing, three or four will be featured in the April issue of Playboy along with women from other Big Eight schools.

Chan said that he hasn't received any negative feedback yet but that it's bound to come.

"But I think that's great," he said. "You have a right to express yourself very freely, especially in a higher education institution."

Chan, who last interviewed women for a Big Eight conference issue in 1982, said more independent attitudes among women have contributed to, rather than detracted from, the quality of the magazine.

Now, women make their decisions about whether to pose based on their own beliefs of right and wrong, Chan said. The naturalness of Playboy's photographs reflect it, he said.

"If people think it's OK, they'll come here. If not, they won't—that's the liberated woman," Chan said.

One woman, a UNL junior who was interviewed Monday by Playboy, said that, among other reasons, her "wild and crazy streak" led her to apply.

"And I was told if I did come here, they wouldn't even look at me, and I don't believe that," she said. "I don't want to sound conceited, but I do think that people would want to look."

— 66 —

If people think it's OK, they'll come here. If not, they won't -- that's the liberated woman.

Chan

Playboy photographer

— 99 —

The woman, who did not want to be identified, said that posing for Playboy would probably give her a greater sense of herself.

Cindy Douglas, the assistant to the coordinator at the Women's Resource Center, said a woman's decision to pose in magazines such as Playboy is one that is encouraged by an oppressive society.

See PLAYBOY on 3

TUESDAY

Correction: An article about a professor's travel costs in the Daily Nebraskan Monday incorrectly stated that SRI-Gallup would gain about 70,000 jobs because of the professor's travel and research. It should have stated that SRI-Gallup would gain about $70,000 in revenue. The Daily Nebraskan regrets the error.

The NU men's basketball team beat High Five America in an exhibition game Monday. Page 7

Smithereens to play in Omaha tonight. Page 9

INDEX

Wire Opinion	2
Sports	4
A&E	7
Classifieds	9
	11