Yedsena, who played 18 minutes after returning from her injury, suffered only a mild sprain.

Beck said she was disappointed that the Cornhuskers weren't able to step forward emotionally after closing the gap.

Jennings led the Huskers with 32 points and 19 rebounds.

Her biggest contribution came in her work off the ball, Beck said.

Nebraska also got significant contributions from the bench. Junior Nafeesah Brown scored 16 points and freshman Sauna Witherspoon had 10.

"We were four or five deep on the bench," Beck said. "We showed a little diversity."

Defensively, the Huskers had trouble with the transition game, Beck said.

"Both teams wanted to run tonight, but we just didn't get up and down the floor on defense," she said.

Nebraska's emphasis on defense during the preseason limited the team's other aspects, Beck said.

Beck said Athletes In Action, which upped its record to 8-2, was a little more gelled than the Huskers.

Nebraska, which beat the Belgium National Team, opens the season Nov. 22 against Creighton.

best decision I've ever made. I'm learning about things that are going to help me later in life."

Azzi was also the point guard for this year's United States Pan-American team which lost to Brazil and Cuba in Havana, Cuba. Although the United States came home with a bronze medal, fans grumbled because it didn't win the gold.

According to Azzi, those grumbles were justified.

"We didn't play well when we needed to play well," she said. "We were definitely a better and more talented team than any team down there. If we had it to do over again, I think we'd win."

Another factor that hurt the United States' chances, Azzi said, was the lack of cohesiveness on the team.

"The chemistry just wasn't there," Azzi said. "Personally, I just don't think we were together long enough."

A second chance at a gold medal may come for Azzi when she attempts to make the U.S. Olympic team that will compete in 1992 in Barcelona, Spain. Tryouts will be in May of next year, and Azzi said she plans to give it a go.

"(Playing in the Olympics) wasn't really a goal for me until I realized that I could do it," she said.
