

Huskers to chase Kansas at conference swim meet

Upset is on the mind of every member of the Nebraska women's swimming and diving team.

The Cornhuskers are the two-time reigning Big Eight champions, but they are not favored this year.

The meet will take place at the Bob Devaney Sports Center today through Saturday.

Nebraska coach Ray Huppert said Kansas will be the team to beat, but added that the meet won't be a two-team competition.

"Kansas has the most talent, but individuals from other teams will be strong," Huppert said. "Missouri and Iowa State have good individual swimmers who will have an effect on the total team scoring."

The challenge the meet provides is just what the Husker team wants, Huppert said.

"Of the last five championships we won, we were the favorite only twice," he said. "We have a great respect for Kansas. They've performed well this year, and should be ranked first."

Nebraska, which has won five Big Eight titles in the past seven years, will have to "perform" to win the meet, he said.

"We can't have any false starts or early relay exchanges," he said. "We can't make any mistakes or have any letdowns."

Huppert said he is confident the taper has helped the Huskers prepare for the competition. A taper reduces the workout load so the swimmers can swim their best times.

"When you have been working as hard as our swimmers have, and you change the training," he said, "the mind understands what you are doing, but it takes time for the body to adjust."

"If the individual continues to have confidence, the good performances are naturally going to come," Huppert said.

The Huskers' 6-5 dual record includes a 136-107 loss to Kansas on Nov. 8, in Lawrence, Kan.

Kansas coach Gary Kempf, who coaches both men's and women's team, said regardless of the Jayhawk win, Nebraska is still the defending conference champion.

"I think it will be a good meet with a lot of surprises and I hope that it is the best of the year for all four schools," Kempf said.

Nebraska returns two conference winners from last season, including Michelle Butcher and Julie Riegall.

Butcher won three events in last season's meet and was named the Big Eight Meet Most Valuable Performer the previous two years.

The junior from Alpine, Calif., also has the fastest Big Eight times in the 500, 1,000 and 1,650-meter freestyle events. She is listed second in the 400 individual medley.

Huppert said having the meet at home should be a psychological advantage for the Huskers.

"I think (having the meet at home) plays a positive role because our swimmers will be familiar with the turns and the lighting," Huppert said. "But it doesn't play that much more of an edge because this is the fastest pool in the conference."

The meet will start today with the women's one-meter diving. The swimming preliminary events begin at 11 a.m., and the finals start at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"It's nice to be home because this might stir up a little more interest in our home fans," he said.

"I don't think it's unlikely or unrealistic to think we have a shot at the title," Huppert said.

American at Southern Illinois.

But Billie already has earned a long list of honors herself, including being named the Most Valuable Player of the 1991 USA National Junior Elite team. The Junior Elite team is made up of the top high school players in the country, Begor said.

In addition to that, Winsett is a three-time all-state selection in Indiana, carries a 4.0 grade-point average and is expected to graduate as the valedictorian of her class.

"She's a kid who sets goals, and she achieves those goals through hard work and talent," Begor said.

Begor said Nebraska still had one scholarship to offer, and coaches were trying to sign one more player.

Searching will be difficult, he said. "We only found four or five players at most that we thought could play here right away," Begor said. "We're at a point now where we can't recruit average players, we have to get exceptional players."

U.S.A. gets hockey shutout

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) — Tuesday's highlights at the Winter Olympics:

MEDALS

Austria was shut out but still leads with seven medals overall. One behind was the Unified Team of former Soviet Republics which won four of the day's nine medals.

FIGURE SKATING

Natalia Mishkutienok and Artur Dmitriev won the eighth-straight gold for the former Soviet Union in pairs' competition. It's the longest streak of golds in Olympic history.

ALPINE

Italy's Josef Polig won the men's combined when leader and defending champion Hubert Strolz of Austria was disqualified for missing a gate near the end of his second run in the slalom.

HOCKEY

The U.S. team raised its record to 2-0, its best start since 1960, with a 2-0 win over Germany as goalie Ray LeBlanc stopped 46 shots.

INJURIES

Two more women downhill skiers, including Austrian star Sabine Ginther, were hurt in training crashes. Ginther was picked to win the downhill and combined, but will miss the rest of the season with a back injury.

WEDNESDAY'S HIGHLIGHTS

Medals at stake in four events: women's luge and 1,500-meter speedskating, men's 10-kilometer biathlon and Nordic combined.

Top American in action: Speedskater Bonnie Blair.

NU wrestler recognized after wins

From Staff Reports

Nebraska's Chris Nelson has been named the Big Eight Wrestler of the Week for his performance at the National Dual Championships last weekend in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Nelson, Nebraska's starter in the 190-pound weight class, posted a 5-0 record at the tournament, including a 7-2 decision over Iowa State's Dan Troupe, who is ranked ninth in the country.

Nelson, who earned All-America honors last season, currently is ranked seventh by Amateur Wrestling News.

Nelson's other wins at the meet came by major decision, technical fall or pin. The wins improved his season dual record to 20-5-2.

Nebraska Coach Tim Neumann said Nelson is back on track to contend for more national honors this season.

"He wrestled as well as he has all year last weekend," Neumann said. "He had been in a bit of a slump, but he worked hard and improved his conditioning, and he is right where he should be in terms of challenging for the national title."

Nelson and the rest of the Cornhuskers are now preparing to face Oklahoma Saturday at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.
