caliber that are playing at the University of Nebraska, each individual has to be responsible for his own free throw shooting."

Nee said his team would have an especially difficult time defeating Missouri, which beat the Huskers 83-73 last month in Lincoln.

"We're trying to find a way to stop them from hurting us and making us bleed, especially in their transition offense," Nee said. "And with (Jeff) Warren coming back, the matchups aren't favorable."

Warren played sparingly in the first meeting while suffering from a case of mononucleosis. He'll return along with All-American candidate Anthony Peeler, who ranks among the nation's top scorers with a 22.3 points-per-game average.

As for playing in Hearnes Arena with Missouri's well-known student supporters, "The Antlers," Nee said it's the players on the court, not the fans, that have given his team trouble in the past in Columbia.

"We have not played well because of the quality of people that we have played," Nee said. "I think the problem has been Doug Smith and Anthony Peeler and not the building or 'The Antlers.'"

"After that, they just lost their cool."

Neumann said he was pleased overall with the way his team wrestled against the Sooners.

Arizona wins Masters Classic

By Erik Unger
Staff Reporter

There were no perfect "10's" in the fourth Annual Masters Classic, held Sunday at the Bob Devaney Sports Center, but there was a tenth.

Three of the Classic's teams — Arizona, Oregon State and Alabama, had scores within one-tenth of each other.

Seventh-ranked Arizona won the meet scoring a school-record 192.050 points. Oregon State was second with 192.00 and last year's champion, Alabama, was third finishing with 191.950.

Nebraska was fourth with 187.600. Cornhusker coach Rick Walton said the Arizona victory surprised him.

"I thought (Oregon State) was going to win," he said. "I thought they were the team that was on a roll."

Arizona head coach Jim Gault agreed.

"This is an upset," he said. "Anytime you beat teams that are ranked several spaces ahead of you, it has to be an upset."

The Wildcats were in third place following the first two rotations, trailing Alabama 96.250-95.25, but came back and tied with the Crimson Tide at 144 with one rotation to go.

Arizona finished with a 48.05 on the balance beam, its weakest event to win the meet.

"We really came back," Gault said. "It shows a lot of character in your group when they can start poorly and fight like hell to come back."

Alabama's All-American Dee Dee Foster, one of eight All-Americans in the field and last year's Masters Classic all-around champion, successfully defended her title with a score of 39.15. She broke her own meet record of 38.90, which was set at the 1991 Classic.

Husker freshman Nicole Duval scored 38.25 in the all-around and placed sixth. She also placed third in the floor exercise, to lead Nebraska.

Walton said he wasn't disappointed.

"I thought we did well considering we are an all freshman and sophomore team," he said. "It is very easy in a meet like this to get intimidated. I think we held up pretty well."

Husker women fall to Oklahoma

From Staff Reports

Nebraska came from behind, but not far enough to beat the Oklahoma women's basketball team Saturday.

The Cornhuskers, who trailed by as many as 12 points in the first half, closed the gap in the second half. But the Sooners held on to win, 92-89, in front of 1,600 people at the Lloyd Noble Arena in Norman, Okla.

The loss dropped the Huskers to 17-6 overall and 7-3 in the Big Eight, and out of a first-place tie with 16th-ranked Kansas.

The Sooners improved to 14-8 and 5-5.

It was a typical conference battle, Nebraska coach Angela Beck said.

"We are disappointed with the loss, but proud of the way the players hung in and fought to have the chance to win," she said.

Trailing 85-77 with 5:10 remaining, the Huskers put together an 8-0 run to tie the game. Karen Jennings scored six of her game-high 39 points in that stretch. She was Nebraska's leading scorer.

Oklahoma's Carin Stites put the Sooners up by two, 87-85, on their next possession, and sophomore Meggan Yedsena answered for the Huskers.

Stites hit her next shot and a free throw after she was fouled on the shot, to put the Sooners ahead for good.

On Nebraska's next possession, Yedsena made two free throws to cut the lead to one with 16 seconds left.

But Stites, who scored Oklahoma's last seven points of the game, hit two free throws for the final margin.

Hoosier track brings teams split success

By John Gardner

The Nebraska men's and women's track and field teams traveled to Bloomington, Ind., this weekend and came home with a split decision.

In the dual competitions, the Husker women easily defeated Indiana, 75-43, while the men lost to the Hoosiers, 78-52 at the IU Fieldhouse Saturday.

Nebraska coach Gary Pepin said the men's results were based on Indiana's intensity and Nebraska's lack of it.

"Our men just flat got beat," Pepin said. "They didn't have very good intensity in the meet.

The women had exceptional performances across the board, Pepin said.

The Husker women had three double winners. Fran ten Benschel kept her winning streak alive by placing first in both the 800-meter run (2:07.76) and the 1,000 (2:52.65). Sprinter Denise Lucas won both the 55 (6.98) and the 200 (24.15). Kwani Stewart took the long jump with an 18-11 leap and won the 55-hurdles in 7.86.

Other winners for the women included Shanelle Porter in the 400

(54.35), Jenny Johnson in the 600-meter run (1:33.3) and Michelle Shoemaker in the high jump (5-6 1/2). The women also won the 1,600 relay (3:46.74).

For the men, Stephen Golding continued to dominate the 55 hurdles, winning the event in 7.26, and Paul Morrison set a school record in the 35-pound weight throw.

Other Nebraska winners included Ken Waller in the 400 (48.78), Renier Henning in the 800 (1:51.9), Mark Jackson in the 600 (1:19.37), Andy Meyer in the shot put (56-3 1/4) and Kirk Petit in the 1,000 (2:34.8).

Baseball team moves to 2-0

From Staff Reports

Nebraska, sparked by a five-run fifth inning, coasted past Doane 11-3 Saturday in baseball action at Buck Beltzer Field.

The 2-0 Cornhuskers led 4-2 entering their half of the fifth, and extended their lead to 9-2 on four hits, a walk and a hit batter.

The Huskers scored two runs in the first inning without an official plate appearance. Two walks, a sacrifice bunt, a sacrifice fly and a hit batter led to the runs.

Doane answered with runs in the second and third innings to tie the game, as the Tigers nipped Nebraska starter Mike Zajeski, who picked up his first win of the season, for four hits in three innings.

Doane picked up only two more hits the rest of the game, one of which was a solo home run by Jess Zeiss off Jason Pflughaupt.

The Huskers had nine hits in the game with Mark Sagmoen, Tim Seaton and Sean McKenna picking up two hits apiece.

No. 1 gymnasts suffer first loss

The Nebraska men's gymnastics team suffered its first loss of the season Saturday, losing to Minnesota 280.95-280.40 at Minneapolis.

The top-ranked Cornhuskers led the entire meet but couldn't hold off a late Minnesota charge. The Golden Gophers outscored Nebraska 48.85-46.70 on the horizontal bar to claim the win.

Minnesota was led by defending NCAA all-around champion John Roethlisberger who posted a 57.80 to win the all-around Saturday. Nebraska's Dennis Harrison was second with a 56.85.
