Three found dead

Officer Christopher Peterson (right), of the Lincoln Police Department, stands by as a woman comforts the man who discovered a Lincoln woman and her two children dead in a car parked in the woman's garage in south-central Lincoln Monday. Police would not release any additional information about the incident.

building was evacuated, he said. The Lincoln Fire Department and the State Fire Marshall responded to the alarms. Only the trash cans were damaged, he said.

Meindl reported another fire in Cather at 12:02 a.m. Friday, Bushing said. The fire in the trash can of the ninth-floor elevator lobby, which did not cause any damage, was extinguished by residents, he said.

The final arson report was called in at 4:04 a.m. Sunday by residence hall security, Bushing said.

A wall suffered $20 worth of damage on the ninth floor of Cather after a sign taped to the wall was set on fire.

The burnt sign informed residents of a $1,000 reward being offered to anyone with information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the residence hall arsons, Bushing said. A cigarette butt was found in the ashes on the floor, he said.

The reward being offered by the Residence Hall Association and housing has increased from $500 last year to $1,000 this year, Meindl said.

Another fire reported in the trash chute of Sandoz Residence Hall at 2:28 a.m. Sunday most likely was not arson, Bushing said.

The Lincoln Fire Department and the State Fire Marshall extinguished the blaze, but they were unable to determine the cause of the fire, he said.

"Trash-chute fires in the past haven't been thought to be related to arsons," he said.

The State Fire Marshall is investigating the reported fires, Bushing said.

"Also, we have more people spending time in the residence halls," he said. "And the residence halls have more people on duty. The problem is you never know when they are going to hit again."

There are no suspects at this time.

similar programs and structures.

The Nebraska society's annual budget is $3.8 million, while Montana's is $2.7 million.

But the Montana society, Sommer said, did not have problems with ownership of Indian burial items and skeletal remains as Nebraska did.

Sommer said he hoped to help American Indian relations by setting up an informal advisory committee made up of members of American Indian tribes, if they wanted one.

Sommer was born in Duluth, Minn. He received his bachelor's degree from Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., and his master's degree in history and historic preservation from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

He was an historic preservation consultant in Duluth before becoming director of the St. Louis County Historical Society in Duluth in 1977.

Spring

"I find myself sitting in class in a cramped, hot classroom, and all I can think about is being outside, riding my bike or walking or just anything outside," Blachford said.

What can be done to protect students from the enticing weather and their own desires to spend the next three weeks slacking off?

Not much, Williams said. "Turn off the sun," he said. "Forget that it's 80 degrees outside, and finals are coming up."

"I don't think any advice from me can help," Williams said. "I can empathize at this point."

DeDra Janssen, a freshman news-editorial major, said a healthy balance between work and play was necessary to cure spring fever.

"I try to take lots of study breaks," Janssen said. "I find that when I can't take any more homework, a trip to the rec center or just calling a friend really helps me to release some tension, so I can attack my books with renewed energy."

If students think their cases of spring fever have gotten out of hand and they are becoming chronically burned out, Williams said, counselors at the UNL Counseling Center are available to talk, and hopefully, help sort out the problem.
