OSU coach still positive despite Huskers' shutout

By Derek Samson
Staff Reporter

Despite Nebraska's 55-0 thrashing of Oklahoma State on Saturday, Cowboy coach Pat Jones was able to point out some positives on his team's side of the ball. "I thought we looked better running the ball than at any point this year," Jones said. "I was really pleased with Mark (Williams) and John (White) at tailback." Oklahoma State attempted only three passes and Jones said that the conservative offense was due partly to the wind conditions. "I didn't think we would be effective throwing against these people, especially with the wind," Jones said. "We are not real good under still conditions so we didn't want to throw too much with that wind."

One Cowboy goal was keeping Nebraska from breaking big plays like the previous year in Stillwater, Okla., when the Huskers' 49-15 victory over OSU was keyed by two long touchdown runs by Derck Brown. Husker I-back Calvin Jones spoiled that goal again this year with touchdown runs of 90 and 48 yards. "We thought going in we had to play lights-out defense — which we didn't — and we gave up the big plays," Jones said. In comparing Nebraska to No. 3 Michigan, Jones said the Huskers were a better running team, but the Wolverines had a better passing team. "There's a reason (the Cornhuskers) are leading the country in rushing," he said. "Michigan is a better passing team and might be a little more physical." The 32-point underdogs gave up 366 yards rushing and 140 through the air to Nebraska, compared to the 155 yards they gained. "It just boiled down to us being outmanned," Jones said. "I'm not as frustrated right now than when we left Fort Worth (after the Cowboys' loss to TCU)." The Cowboys, last in the country in total offense, were without their No. 1 quarterback, No. 1 split end and No. 1 flanker, who were all suspended from the game for disciplinary reasons. Jones said he expected them back next week. Also missing was No. 1 tailback Raphael Denson, who was out with a neck injury. "He could have played if it came down to that, but we were trying not to use him," Jones said.

Baseball Day attracts 41 alumni

By Tim Pearson
Staff Reporter

Winning wasn't everything, at least not at the Nebraska Alumni Baseball Day on Saturday. "Most of us probably didn't even know what the score was," Steve Stanicek, who played for the Huskers from 1980 to 1982, said. "It's not really the game (that attracts me), it's the people." Forty-one former Husker baseball players participated in the third annual alumni game. Among those was one active major leaguer. Kip Gross, who pitched for Nebraska in 1986, played for Los Angeles this year. He compiled a 1-1 record with an earned run average of 4.18. Gross said that it was nice to come back to Lincoln. "I enjoyed it," he said. "It's nice to see everybody and have a good time." The point of the game was for "everybody to get a swing" at bat, Mike Harlander, the event's organizer, said. The white team beat the red team 6-3, overcoming the game's only home run, which was hit by Shawn Buchanan in the bottom of the second inning. After the game, a home run hitting contest was held. Former Husker All-American Paul Meyers, now an assistant at Nebraska, won the competition for the second year in a row. Although winning was not of importance, it was important for the players to do their best, Stanicek said. "You don't want to embarrass yourself out there," he said. Husker baseball coach John Sanders said he "thoroughly enjoyed" the game. "The biggest part of it is having all the players back and seeing them enjoying themselves," he said. "We're all winners on a day like this."

Huskers swiftly polish off Tigers

By Jeff Singer
Senior Reporter

Once again, the Nebraska volleyball team made a long road trip for a quick job. The Cornhuskers, who have swept their last six matches, polished off Missouri 15-5, 15-6, 15-3 on Saturday in Columbia, Mo. Nebraska has won 19 straight games since Wyoming forced the Huskers to a five-game match in September. Husker volleyball coach Terry Pettit said his team's improved play had contributed to the Nebraska's recent rash of sweeps. "We definitely have been playing better, and we're playing with a lot more confidence," Pettit said. Pettit said the Tigers were overmatched against Nebraska. "Against this team, the key was getting the ball over their setter," Pettit said. "Physically, they couldn't stop us." The Huskers won their 23rd straight match against Missouri and improved their overall record against the Tigers to 36-2-1. Pettit said Missouri had improved over last year. "Missouri's team was stronger than they've been in the past," Pettit said. "They were getting a lot of side-outs, but they had trouble running points on us." The win, before 187 fans at the Hearnes Center, improved Nebraska's overall record to 10-2 and its conference mark to 4-0. The Tigers dropped to 12-5 and 1-4. The Huskers were propelled by a .404 hitting percentage compared to Missouri's .214 average. Seniors Stephanie Thater and Eileen Shannon led the Nebraska hitters, as each hit .500 in the match. Despite his team being in first place in the Big Eight and having gone through one-third of the conference schedule unscathed, Pettit said he still didn't know if Nebraska was the team to beat in the Big Eight. "There's still a couple of teams we haven't played like Colorado and Kansas State, so that remains to be seen," he said.
