Committee approves budget policy report

By Jeff Zeleny
Staff Reporter

If major budget reductions are ever necessary at UNL, procedures will be in place to protect university employees and to assure the process goes smoothly.

A report outlining budget-cutting procedures, prepared by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Academic Planning Committee, was unanimously approved by the UNL Academic Senate Tuesday.

The report was created to examine UNL's process for handling fiscal shortfalls and to recommend procedures for budget redistribution, program elimination and consolidation. The guidelines will be used only when significant budget shortfalls occur.

Chancellor Graham Spanier said the procedure probably would never be used, but was available if needed. "Everyone is protected by contract," Spanier said. "I don't think there's been any stone left unturned."

Spanier encouraged input on the budget shortfall measure. The measure also must be approved by the Association of Students of the University of Nebraska.

Spanier returned from Tokyo late Monday, after traveling to Japan last week to attend the Nebraska vs. Kansas State football game. The visit also focused on business, he said.

"We visited a number of corporate leaders in Japan," he said. "We (also) spent time with leaders at our sister institution, Senshu University."

James Griesen, vice chancellor for student affairs, said the administration had held meetings across the state about the proposed tightening of admissions standards. He said he had attended eight of the 11 meetings and that there was a "strong base of support."

The only meeting where people presented major opposition was in North Omaha, he said. The meeting attendants expressed concern that new standards could deny opportunities for African-American students there, he said.

There is a "considerable amount of distrust in the system," he said. "Rather than change our standards, we need to assure them (that) we're not going to ignore them."

UNL police arrest man during automobile break-in

From Staff Reports

University of Nebraska-Lincoln police arrested a man Friday night for breaking into a car in a parking lot at 19th and T streets, Sgt. Mylo Bushing said.

Bushing said an officer was patrolling the lot Friday night when he saw Christopher L. Edwards, 18, of Lincoln throw a brick through a car window. Edwards, a former UNL student, then removed a radar detector and some clothing from the car, he said.

After Edwards was arrested, Bushing said, he admitted to breaking into another car on East Campus.

Bushing said it was unknown whether Edwards was responsible for numerous break-ins in the lot at 19th and T streets over Thanksgiving break. Vandalism and theft caused about $1,600 damage to 14 cars parked in the lot.

Edwards is charged with two counts of vandalism and criminal mischief and two counts of larceny from a vehicle. He will appear in court Dec. 21.

Suspects

semiautomatic pistol, several rounds of 9 mm ammunition, computer equipment and a pipe used for smoking cocaine.

Trouble with the law is nothing new to either Barney or Bjorklund. According to court records, Barney has been convicted for several traffic offenses and petty larceny. Records also show that Barney occasionally had failed to pay child support for his 4-year-old son.

Barney also had been charged in 1985 with burglarizing ComputerLand, where he allegedly took a computer and other equipment. The case was disposed of in juvenile court.

Bjorklund had been convicted of speeding, failure to appear in court and disobeying a traffic sign.

A conversation between Barney and his attorney Saturday morning led to the end of a 2 1/2-month search for Harms, whose disappearance yielded few clues, bewildered investigators and frustrated search parties.

Lancaster County Attorney Gary Lacey said Monday that his office was contacted Saturday by Barney's attorney, who said Barney had volunteered information about the fate and whereabouts of Harms.

Barney told his attorney that he and Bjorklund abducted and murdered Harms the night of Sept. 22, Lacey said.

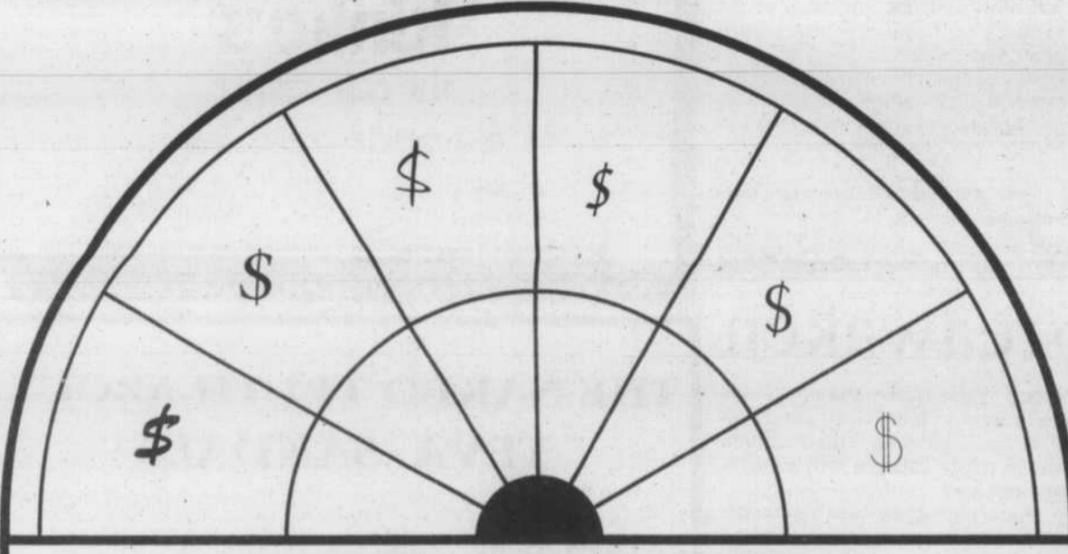

The information Barney provided led to the discovery of a body near 134th Street and Yankee Hill Road, southeast of Lincoln.

An autopsy Monday confirmed through dental and fingerprint examination that the body was Harms. The cause of death was determined to have been four gunshot wounds to the head.

Lacey would not confirm that Barney led investigators to the site where Harms' body was found, but witnesses at the site said a man clad in an orange Lancaster County Jail jumpsuit emerged from a police car Sunday morning, pointed toward a tree and got back into the car.

Investigators later found the body, partially exposed, in a shallow grave near the tree.

Lacey would not say if Barney had volunteered the information about Harms in a plea-bargaining attempt, and he would not reveal who fired the fatal gunshots.

CASH for BOOKS

WHAT should I do with them?

Keep them? Sell them? Throw them away?

KEEP FOR YOUR PERMANENT LIBRARY THOSE BOOKS THAT WILL HAVE FUTURE REFERENCE VALUE.

THE USED BOOK BUY-BACK PROGRAM — is offered to you as a service and a convenience to convert your unwanted books to CASH.

BOOKS THAT YOU DO NOT WANT TO KEEP

Our policy is to buy college textbooks that a student decides are no longer needed or wanted and for which there is a resale market. If the instructor informs the bookstore that he/she will require a book for the forthcoming school term, the bookstore will pay 50% of the current list price (regardless of whether you bought the book new or used) unless the store already has an adequate supply.

THE INSTRUCTOR, NOT THE BOOKSTORE, DETERMINES WHICH BOOKS ARE REQUIRED.

BOOKS NOT NEEDED BY THE BOOKSTORE

As an additional service and convenience for the students, we are providing a market through the largest national used book company for the books not needed on this campus. The prices paid for these books are determined by the national supply and demand — some books have no resale value.

WHEN TO SELL —

The sooner after each term that you sell your books the better your chance of receiving 50% — because it is at this time of the year that our inventory is most depleted and the time we are receiving orders for the next term. By the time classes of a new term start, we cannot pay 50% because we already stocked the book in adequate quantity.

Thanks to you,
