Oklahoma State has rebounded from a 11-17 record last year and a seventh-place finish in the Big Eight.

This year the Cowgirls, who are coming off a 64-58 win over Nebraska on Sunday, are ranked No. 20 and sport a 20-3 overall record.

Easley said that winning the rest of their games would be a tough task to accomplish.

"We've got Colorado at home, and we're playing at Oklahoma, where it's always tough because it's an interstate rivalry," he said. "We've got some scary games coming up."

Berry echoed that sentiment. "We still have Oklahoma State and Nebraska," Berry said. "But it really doesn't matter who you're playing."

Berry said her team was going to take it one game at a time.

"Our next game is against Missouri," she said. "If we lose against Missouri, the rest of the games won't matter."

Karen Jennings named Player of the Week

From Staff Reports

Nebraska senior Karen Jennings was named the Big Eight's Player of the Week for her record-setting play in two Cornhusker wins last week.

Jennings, a 6-foot-2 center from Persia, Iowa, scored 86 points and grabbed 37 rebounds in Nebraska victories over Southwest Missouri State and Oklahoma and a Sunday loss at No. 21 Oklahoma State.

She became the all-time Nebraska women's leading scorer midway through the game against Southwest Missouri State. Against Oklahoma, she passed Dave Hoppen to become Nebraska's all-time scoring leader in men's and women's basketball.

Jennings now has 2,210 points in her career.

Nebraska dropped one spot to No. 23 in the Associated Press poll released Monday. Other ranked Big Eight teams include Oklahoma State, ranked No. 21, and Colorado, ranked No. 4.

Nee

"I think there will be five or six — I don't see how you take four," Nee said. "It's just depending on how the (Big Eight) tournament goes and how things unfold at the end."

As for the Huskers and their strive for the postseason, Nee said Nebraska will need contributions similar to that of forward Terrance Badgett on Sunday.

The redshirt freshman from Omaha had 11 points against the Jayhawks, but his biggest basket came when he had a steal and dunk in the final seconds of the game to secure the Husker upset over Kansas.

Nee said he's hoping Badgett's play was a taste of what to expect in future games.

"Terrance has been a really pleasant surprise to the fans and the news that since Terrance Badgett joined the program, he's worked every year, got himself strong in his redshirt year, he's worked hard in practice and then he earned a starting position — he's an ultimate team player.

"But nothing that he did he's not capable of doing on a regular basis," Nee said.

"I think you're going to see that over the next few years."

Tennis season begins Saturday

Several seniors return to lineup

When the Nebraska women's tennis team opens Saturday with a double-header, Cornhusker coach Scott Jacobson is hoping it will be the beginning of a solid season.

The Cornhuskers will play Creighton at 10 a.m. and then face Northern Illinois at 3 p.m. at Woods Tennis Center.

Jacobson said he was looking for improvement from his veteran team this season.

"Our goal is to finish in the top half of the conference," Jacobson said. "I believe that is realistic for this team."

The Huskers are not lacking experience, returning four experienced seniors along with three sophomores and a freshman.

Nebraska returns seniors Tina Coutretsis, Ann Flannery, Zarina Galvan and Heidi Junius to anchor the team.

"We have... seniors who all have considerable experience on the court," Jacobson said. "Their presence will be important for us this season."

Jacobson, whose team finished fifth in the Big Eight last season with a 3-4 record, knows what it will take for the Huskers to finish in that upper half of the conference.

"We will also need consistency and 100 percent effort," he said. "Another important element for us is how we compete in the lower positions. If we are able to get some wins in the lower brackets, we will be on the right track."

Galvin will be playing in the No. 1 singles spot while Flannery will play No. 2. Sophomore Frauke Hachtmann will be No. 3 and Junius will be playing No. 4.

The final two spots will be filled by sophomore Jane Startin and Coutretsis, respectively.
