

Husker golfers have tough meet

From Staff Reports

The Nebraska golf team finished 17th out of an 18-team field at the South Florida Invitational last weekend. The Cornhuskers shot a 962 in the three-day event, which was won by Georgia.

Nebraska was led by Craig Poet and Chad Dubisar, who each shot 239 and finished in a tie for 58th place.

Nebraska will continue its road swing this weekend, traveling to Fripp, S.C., to compete in the Fripp Island Invite.

bines was that it would be tougher for a special-team player to get drafted than other position players.

"There were probably four to five teams that said they were looking for a punter," he said. "It's a little bit harder as a punter and kicker, because you've really got to go out and prove yourself."

Craig Ellenport, who is the college football writer for Sport Magazine and the former editor in chief of College & Pro Football Newsweekly, said Stigge might not get drafted, but he should end up in the NFL.

"With only seven rounds in the draft, a lot of guys will be signing on as free agents; I think one of the top guys to do that will be Stigge," Ellenport said. "Stigge will get signed — he'll be in somebody's camp."

Overall, Ellenport said he saw Brown, the Big Eight's Offensive Player of the Year last season who left Nebraska after his junior year, and Hill, a second-team All-American, as being the highest Nebraskans selected.

But Ellenport said he wasn't sure whether Brown's decision to leave school early was a good choice.

"There's a pretty good crop of running backs this year, and there's not a high demand for them in the first round," he said. "I would say Derek Brown is good enough to go in the second round, but there's a lot of good running backs out there."

Ellenport said that Brown's counterpart, Calvin Jones, might have more success in the NFL.

"I thought Calvin Jones was the better of the two," he said.

And does Ellenport think Jones will leave next season after his junior year? "If he has the same kind of year as he had this year, sure."

Along with Shields, who won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top lineman, Ellenport said a couple of sleepers in the draft might end up being Parrella and tight end William Washington.

"A guy who shot up this season was John Parrella, especially because of the need for defensive tackles in the NFL," he said.

"Another guy who has a chance is William Washington," Ellenport said. "He's a guy who was really looked at before (former Nebraska tight end) Johnny Mitchell came into the program, and a need for many teams is at tight end."

Ellenport said this was just another good class of NFL prospects that the Huskers have produced.

White said Nebraska's reputation to have players in the NFL should have had a factor not only in Indianapolis, but on draft day as well.

"Nebraska has the tradition of putting good players in the NFL. Our coaches are highly respected in the NFL community," White said. "Just like it's said, 'It's not what you know, but who you know.'"

Three teams fight for Big Eight title

By Jeff Griesch
Staff Reporter

After beginning the Big Eight season with an 0-3 record, the Nebraska basketball team has a chance to finish in a three-way tie for the conference championship.

Nebraska has won five of its last six games, and Cornhusker coach Danny Nee said his team played at a higher level in a 91-87 win against Iowa State on Saturday.

"That was one of the best basketball games played in this building in a long time," Nee said. "It was championship level of play."

The Huskers' win over the Cyclones moved Nebraska, 7-5, into sole possession of third place, two games behind league-leading Kansas, and a game behind Oklahoma State.

Several things need to go right in order for the Huskers to come away with a share of a Big Eight Championship:

1. Oklahoma State had to lose their next-to-last game, which they did, 89-80, to Oklahoma on Monday night.

2. Nebraska must break a 10-year losing streak at Allen Fieldhouse and beat Kansas in Lawrence, Kan., on Wednesday and beat Oklahoma on Sunday in Lincoln.

3. Oklahoma State must win at Stillwater, Okla., against the Jayhawks on Sunday.

Whether or not everything falls into place for the Huskers, Nee said his team had realized one of its goals from the start of the season.

"One of our goals at the beginning of the season was to be in it the last week of the season," Nee said.

Kansas coach Roy Williams said the Huskers had a shot at the championship because they were playing more like a team as the season had progressed.

"To win five of six games you start playing better and get healthy," Williams said. "I also think they are feeling better about each other and are more comfortable with each other."

In other Big Eight news, Oklahoma State center Bryant Reeves was named Big Eight Player of the Week for the third time this season.

Reeves, a sophomore from Ganz, Okla., averaged 23 points and 12 rebounds in the Cowboys' wins over Missouri and Colorado.

Reeves' 45-footer at the end of regulation sent the game into overtime against the Tigers.

men, but felt let down by his freshmen.

"The upperclassmen have pretty much been carrying things for the past three or four meets," he said.

Sophomores Hawkinson, Duval and Martha Jenkins finished one, two and three in the all-around competition.

Michigan State was led by Jodi Blotcher and Ruth Aguayo, who finished fourth and fifth respectively.

But Hawkinson, who won the all-around title with a score of 38.65, said she was pleased with the Huskers' performance despite the loss.

"I thought it was a really good team effort," she said. "I think we had good team spirit and we kept together as a team."

Walton said his team needed to work on the little things in order for them to improve on the score.

The freshmen, he said, must try to imitate the older gymnasts' intensity and concentration.

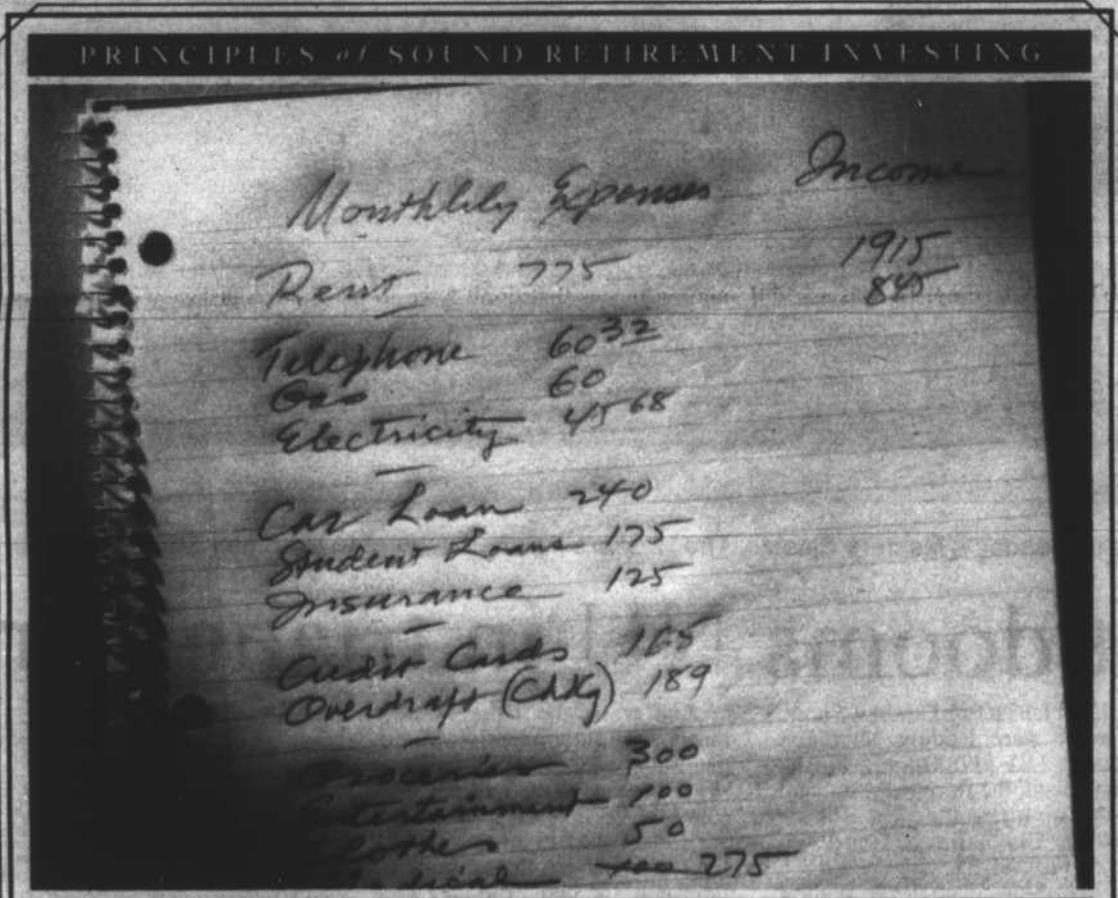

And Walton said the upperclassmen needed to sharpen their performances and concentrate on all aspects of their routines. "I hope what the girls get out of this is that they're going to have to clean up a little bit," he said. "They can't just get by."

Sticking landings on the vault and concentrating on dismounts can make a difference in the outcome, he said.

Although Walton said he had hoped for a higher score, he said the 190.35 would count for one of the six scores that goes for the NCAA Midwest Regional.

"It's not a bad score," he said. "We had hoped for a 191; we had also hoped to win the meet."

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax-deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $192,539* by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $227 each month to reach the same goal.

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over a million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not join them?
