

Break changes little

A couple of deep knee bends and my deep-breathing exercises in front of my big picture window.

Put on my clothes. Deal with harassing phone calls and hoots from neighbors for doing my exercises naked in front of the window.

Write in my diary: "Up at six, exercises, harassing phone calls . . ."

Then I'd turn on the radio for a good solid hour of hard listening. If I felt particularly festive, I might put in my tape (I only have one) and listen to the sweet strains of The Captain and Tennille.

"Looks like muskrat love," I'd joke with the photo of my cousin, Jo Ane Marie.

Yep, then a quick bike ride, dodging the tumbleweeds blowing through the abandoned streets, to My Favorite Bar to drink up the money I saved by staying home this year.

Ah, to be in Lincoln now that spring is here. I stayed, that's right, and I didn't spend $1,000 and put 50,000 miles on a car I don't have. My spring break was a lot like my regular life, and that's just the way I wanted it. I sent myself postcards from all the places I didn't go.

I sat and simmered in my own juices, and I liked it.

A typical day this break went something like this: Up at 6 a.m. to the sound of little birdies and the guy who mows the lawn in front of my house.
