

Daily Harassment

April Fools' Day, 1993

University of No-Learning

Vol. 92 No.

ANUS sends pudgy president to showers

By Bodine Gunch
Staff Reporter

ANUS members waved a tearful farewell to their outgoing president, Andy Cheeserson, in a special ceremony at Wednesday night's meeting.

"I think I speak for the entire group," First Vice President Trendy Stool said, "when I say I'm gonna miss this pudgy lil' fella."

Cheeserson, sniffling, thanked the members for their hard work and dedication.

"You are the reason ANUS is what it is today," he said, giving Stool a noogie. "My resumé wouldn't be anything without you people."

The outgoing president, in his last official act, then called forth for a ceremonial resumé check of all members.

"Ahhhhh . . . my precious," Cheeserson said, dancing a jig. "That's the beauty of student government. Ha Ha Ha."

Cheeserson briefly listed the goals he had accomplished during his term: — Nothing.

Former ANUS presidents Candy Sassy and Phil O'my Gosh made a special appearance to announce the opening of Sassy's presidential library in the basement of ANUS' secret clubhouse.

After a special photo opportunity — the first time four living ANUS presidents had gathered in one place — Sassy wished the new president, Keith Vanish, well.

"Mr. Vanish, many will question your presence in student government, but always remember, 'If you can't stand the kitchen, get out of the heat.'"

Vanish and the rest of the members then turned to other business, including a controversial measure that would require all seniors be baptized before graduation ceremonies.

See ANUS on 2

Top 10 List of things former ANUS president Andy "the Chubman" Cheeserson accomplished while in office.

10. Ordered the Souper Douper Deli Deal four times a week at Little Fling.
9. Had someone else shine his shoes.
8. Flaw to McCook, Nebraska.
7. Ate sushi with Tom "OZZY" Osborne at a strip joint in Japan.
6. Made friends with Sen. Scott Moros of Seward.
5. Got plined to a Fle Nno chick.
4. Streaked with CORSAGE members while on-lookers yelled "Look at that chubby!"
3. Solved the parking problem for himself with private parking stall.
2. Gave Keith Vanish driving lessons.
1. Used supplemental ANUS funds to visit an orthodontist.

Spacey McFly/DH

New ANUS President Keith Vanish the Political Ghost looms behind First Vice President Trendy Stool the night of the VOID's victory party at the Cherry Hut March 10. The apparition has been sighted numerous times since.

Poof

Keith Vanish materializes for ANUS, meatloaf sandwich

By Alan Welps
Senior Editor

Keith Vanish, new ANUS president and apparent supernatural being, was sighted today by an alert student in the Nebraska Union.

Vanish allegedly was buying a new Burger King Meatloaf Sandwich.

Meatloaf sandwich."

"He was right there, not two feet away from me," Gabe Jones, a junior engineering major, said. "I said to my friend, 'My God, is it really Vanish?' Then I took a big bite of the new Burger King

The report, coming on the first day of Vanish's term, sparked anew controversy surrounding the election of a ghost as student regent.

"How can this guy go to board meetings if he exists on another plane?" asked Vice Chancellor for Stupid Affairs James Greasy. "I don't get it."

Vanish, who won the post by a slim margin in a March 10 election, surprisingly was not available for comment.

But Trendy Stool, Vanish's running mate, defended the apparition.

"What a bunch of nit picking. So Keith doesn't technically live in the same world we do," he said. "I think he'll fit in well with the Board of Rejects."

Vanish was seen seldom during the election campaign and after. Bouts with bathroom doors, trees and other inanimate objects kept him in the netherworld for most of the race.

A crew from Fox-TV's critically acclaimed show "Sightings" visited the campus in mid-March to attempt to record evidence that Vanish exists.

"This one was tough," Sightings producer Arnie Fufkin said. "Once we thought we had him in that frat bathroom, but then the fire department showed up before we could get a good shot of him."

Vanish has defied the experts in his efforts to remain the unseen force behind ANUS. Students and administrators alike

See VANISH on 2

Rejects cry over spilt milk at Mickey D's

By Swoozie Arl
Staff reporter

After months of squabbling and bickering among NU Bored of Rejects, President Martini Massengil ejected four members from a meeting because they just couldn't play nicely. The emergency meeting, called by Massengil, was held in the Kiddie Land section of a local Mickey D's restaurant. The purpose of the meeting, he said, was to stress to the rejects the importance of acting maturely.

"I will see to it that this childish bickering ceases," Massengil said. "I might be a lame duck president, but my quack will still be heard. QUACK QUACK QUACK!" Massengil screamed over Reject Rosemelly Skrewwy's incessant giggling.

"I just love little duckies," Prancy O'Lying, on her back, squealed.

The bored's spoopee faces date back to Reject Throbert Abdomen's crying over not being invited to a Nov. 15 game of freeze tag at the playhouse of fellow reject, Charlie Won'tson, known as Lil Chuckie to his friends.

"I don't want Throbbie over at my house anymore," Chuckie pouted. "He farts."

Skrewwy and O'Lying also whined that fellow reject, Nasty Poke, was the only woman at the tag match.

But Reject Chairman Jon Bon Pain said Skrewwy and O'Lying were not asked to Won'tson's house because "they act too much like girls. They try to kiss us and stuff. Gross."

"Plus, Nasty (Poke) looks best in one of those tight little aprons. She served us milk and cookies and stuff, and she doesn't act like a wussy GUUHRL. So there."

Reject Shootin' Blanks added: "Yeah. So there."

With that, Skrewwy picked up a handful of cheese dip and threw it at Pain's face.

Massengil, who had been sitting in the time-out corner for imitating Pain's favorite Sesame

See REJECTS on 3

NUL Par King paves way for parking garage

By Whiff Zaney
Senior reporter

In the future, NUL students will be able to rest their heads easier at night and find a parking stall simpler every morning thanks to the diligent efforts of Student Par King Marcus Foolsgoldfeather.

soon on his dream: a $10-million,

2,000,000-stall valet-parking garage with gold-encrusted busts of himself on top of every meter.

Foolsgoldfeather said the structure would be financed through parking fees and a bake sale featuring his mother's recipe for "Jersey Meat Pie."

"Parking," he said. "Parking parking parking. Garage."

Foolsgoldfeather said students wanted and deserved parking spots close to their classrooms.

"Parking," he added.

Foolsgoldfeather said that last fall, he took it upon himself to do a nonscientific poll of NUL students. His goal: to determine "parking."

"Parking parking parking?"

Foolsgoldfeather asked students all across campus.

"Garage garage garage," he said they replied.

"Oooh," Foolsgoldfeather said. "Parking bad. Garage good."

Foolsgoldfeather then took the results of his little poll to the evil minions of the university Parking Ain't really Crappy committee.

"Parking parking parking GARAGE parking parking parking," Foolsgoldfeather said to the minions. "GARAGE GARAGE GARAGE!"

But the gurus were not convinced. "Fees fees fees," they said.

But Foolsgoldfeather was undaunted. He continued his fight against the evil forces of PARC by teaming up with the Andrew Cheeserson and the benevolent monarchs of ANUS.

"Parking parking parking GARAGE parking parking parking," Foolsgoldfeather said to the sinators. "Parking FEES parking parking parking."

"Parking."

Cheeserson and the other sinators then forged a pact with PARC increasing the cost of parking permits 8.7 percent each year for the next two years. In exchange for accepting the increase, ANUS was guaranteed that all funds raised would go toward the new garage.