The Daily WE WANT Nebraskan... to work as the DNE is now accepting applications for senior staff positions for the fall semester. Senior staff positions include: managing editor, associate news editor, sports editor, wire editor, senior reporters, copy desk chief, night news editor, photo chief, assistant photo chief, art director, cartoonist, supplements editor, Sower editor and columnist. If your are interested, come on down to the DN office in the basement of Nebraska Union, pick up an application and sign up for an interview.

UNL does not discriminate its academic, admissions or employment programs and abides by all federal regulations pertaining to same.

The Daily Nebraskan is currently accepting applications for Fall Account Executives. The position requires approximately 25 hours per week. We're looking for people who are creative, self-motivated, eager to learn, strong communicators, sales-oriented, and have an advertising background.

Want real world advertising experience while vou're still in school?

Pay is based on commission with additional bonuses awarded monthly. Applicants must be UNL students carrying at least six credit hours. Applications are available in the Daily Nebraskan office (basement of Nebraska Union) and must be completed and returned by Wednesday, April 7@3 pm.

UNL does not discriminate in its academic, dmissions or employment programs and abide by all federal regulations pertaining to same.

Daily Nebraskan Week celebrates graduate school

Events address post-graduation concerns, options

By Corey Russman Staff Reporter

A week designed to educate and inform students of the opportunities graduate school has to offer will be held April 7-14, an official said Monday. Mary Sully, a graduate assistant in Placement the Career Planning and Placement office, said she hoped the Graduate and Professional School Week would "address most of the issues people are concerned with." Sully is a graduate student majoring in communication studies

Sully said the first-annual event was being sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences and graduate school deans' offices, along with Career Planning and Placement, biological sciences and the nursing college

The events of the week are aimed at helping undergraduate students intcrested in graduate or professional school, Sully said. Special activities wildered and some optimistic. One shirt spelled out the abuser's name,

Chad, in an acronym — Controlling, Hate, Aggressive, Domineering — to depict the victim's feelings.

Judith Kriss, director of the Once victims can express their feel-

A Clothesline Project workshop,

Women's Center, said the shirts were ings, they are making progress, she where women can design their own place from 7-9 tonight in the Ne-

Elizabeth Kimberly, director of the Lincoln Clothesline Project, encouraged women who had been subjected

"What we are trying to attain is a way to create a tangible understanding to the victims pain and suffering,

The workshop also will help vic-tims who want to find counseling or who are seeking prosecution of their

to abuse to attend the workshop.

step in the recovery process.

ne

said.

braska Union.

Kimberly said.

Continued from Page 1

are planned to address the needs of ____ non-traditional students, minorities and women, she said.

The entire week is open to anyone," Sully said.

By having events throughout the week, she said, the sponsors are trying to reach people who are not always on campus, as well as people from the entire state.

Sully said the week definitely was needed, citing the 22 percent increase in enrollment that had occurred in the graduate school over the last 10 years.

Some of the weeks events include:

Wednesday, April 7 • Health fair

· A discussion on alternatives to graduate or professional school

Thursday, April 8

 Med Tech lab and dental college tours

Mock interviews

 A discussion on women and graduate or professional school

Friday, April 9

 A discussion on non-traditional students and graduate or professional school

 A discussion on financing graduate or professional school

Cheng

Continued from Page 1

A detailed description of her background paved the way for a discussion about foreign policy and the outside world's relation with modern-day China, the main focus of her lecture.

"President Clinton," she said, should practice quiet diplomacy.

Cheng followed that statement by painting a grim view of the media. She said the press too often threw issues concerning foreign affairs out shirts and discuss problems, will take of proportion, creating more agitation and trouble than reality.

> "It is very important," Cheng said, "for the United States to hold their most favored nation policy toward China.

This, she said, is the cornerstone to improving U.S./Chinese diplomatic relations.

Cheng also said it was in Taiwan's best interest to become an independent state and build a structure on the foundation of democracy.

The entire week is open to anyone.

graduate assistant in Career Planning and Placement

-Sully

Saturday, April 10 Dental and law college open house

Monday, April 12 • Dental college tours

A discussion on the graduate school application process Tuesday, April 13 • A discussion on the health program application process

 A discussion on minority students and graduate or professional school

Wednesday, April 14

 A discussion on graduate school: What is it? Why go?

· A discussion on what to expect from graduate and professional school entrance tests

A complete listing of events is available at the Career Planning and Placement office.

I lost one-third of my weight while in prison and I was treated better than most. I was never abandoned by the Lord.

--Cheng speaker

"Taiwan," Cheng said, "is in better economic and political shape than China. They will remain a thriving land in the Pacific Rim."

Cheng closed the lecture by reiterating the importance of tight U.S./ Chinese relations.

"Close relations between these two nations," she said, "is equally impor-- economically and politically tant to both China and the United States.

Wednesday, April 7, 1993

