

Damon Lee/DN

Jeff Haller/DN

Kiley Timperley/DN

Travis Hoying/DN

(Front page)

Julie Kazmierski, a freshman music major, dries her hair in her room in Smith Hall before going to class.

(Clockwise from upper left) Stacey Nerud, a freshman, receives help getting ready for the day from Jeff Oatman, a home health aide for Heartland Home Health. Nerud was paralyzed from the shoulders down, with little movement in his arms, after he broke his neck in a driving accident nine years ago.

Kelly Rossum, a senior music major, plays his trumpet at the Sheldon Memorial Sculpture Garden in the late afternoon.

Lori Hatcher, a senior biology major, eats lunch with her daughter Jennifer, 4 1/2, at the Gingerbread Cottage day-care center.

Kevin Benson and two other students continue working on their economics tests after most of the students in the class had left.

Brian Martin, a pitcher for the Nebraska baseball team, signs autographs after a game against Missouri.

Patrons of The Edge, 9th and P streets, dance under strobe lights.